The column in this issue is dedicated to the memory of Laura Ellen (Butts) Hinkle whose son, the late Eugene E. Hinkle of Connecticut, has given a scholarship fund to her Alma Mater in her honor.

The Laura Ellen Butts Hinkle Memorial

When Eugene Hinkle, retired steel manufacturer, died in Greens Farms, Conn. in 1944, his will provided that three institutions, Wesleyan, Mercer, and Stevens Institute of Technology, receive a share of one-third of his estate. Mr. Hinkle was an alumnus of the last two institutions; his mother was a graduate of Wesleyan.

A partial settlement of the estate is being made this fall, and Wesleyan is to receive a first payment for the LAURA ELLEN BUTTS HINKLE MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP FUND, income from which is to be used to aid juniors and seniors.

Two Wesleyan Friends of 1858

Delia Jewett and Laura Butts were classmates and dear friends at Wesleyan, both graduating in 1858. This sweet girlhood picture, made from an old daguerreotype, was sent to Wesleyan by Delia's daughter, Mary Morton Doyal. Delia's mother, Eunice Frances (Freeman) Jewett, was at Wesleyan when it opened, her father, Azel Roe Freeman, being the first business manager of the college.

THE WESLEYAN ALUMNAE

The Wesleyan Radio Workshop

An outstanding national figure in radio, John Snyder Carlile, has joined the Wesleyan faculty as director of radio succeeding Mrs. Anne Frierson Griffin, under whose supervision the department grew from one class with five students to a production group which three times has achieved national recognition. Mrs. Griffin is still on the Wesleyan faculty, now devoting her time to playwriting and speech courses.

Mr. Carlile comes to Wesleyan with wide experience in commercial and academic radio. He was formerly program production of CBS, and his choice of Wesleyan as a place where he can continue "the intelligent uniting of radio and education" demonstrates the reputation of the college in this field.

Mrs. Griffin attributed the remarkable success of the Wesleyan radio department to its attempt to serve the community outside the campus. In the early days of the department, a member of the staff of WMAZ, local CBS affiliate whose support has made possible the national success, advised the Wesleyan Radio Workshop to turn its attention to programs of interest to the entire city and later the state and nation.

"We were told that radio was not a new art form for colleges to dabble with, that it was not a series of classroom lectures, nor a showcase for classroom lectures. It is a business, and its job is to serve the public," says Mrs. Griffin.

Wesleyan students went to work at once to translate the practical advice into action. College themes were discarded for subjects of general interest.

It was during the war, and Wesleyan produced a series of programs about war-time problems in Macon. One of the shows was written about a young couple in search of a place to live in overcrowded Macon of Camp Wheeler days.

Partially on the basis of what the Wesleyan radio students were doing in 1943-44, WMAZ received the coveted Alfred I. DuPont National Award for public service in radio.

In 1945 the Workshop again received national attention when a radio student, Bettye (Hall) Dunn, B.F.A. '47, was chosen to introduce President Roosevelt over a nation-wide hook-up originating in California.

The most recent and perhaps the greatest recognition came last spring when Wesleyan, through WMAZ was awarded honorable mention (or second place) for the "creation of an unusually effective institutional sponsored radio program, "Because There Is a Georgia." The award was made by the City College of New York in its annual awards for radio.

First award in this contest went to the network show, "The Greatest Story Ever Told," and judges were the editors of Broadcasting Magazine, Radio Daily, Tide, Advertising Age, and three other national trade publications. This series of eight weekly programs, telling of the history and interesting places and events associated with Georgia, was sponsored by Rich's of Atlanta, and brought enthusiastic letters from listeners all over the state.

Sponsored by the Bibb Manufacturing

Company, the Workshop presented last spring a weekly program over WMAZ entitled "This Is Georgia." Among the scripts were ones on Jekyl Island, on Juvenile Delinquency in Bibb County, and Wesleyan.

Once a year students of radio take over the station WMAZ for the entire day, doing all the work usually done by staff members including announcing, writing, and newscasting.

Graduates with a major in radio have been successfully placed in a variety of radio jobs. Mildred Collins, A.B. '45, is radio consultant for the Junior League with offices in the Waldorf in New York. She was formerly radio director for Rich's, Inc.

In Macon, Helen (Farmer) Popejoy, A.B., '44, B.F.A. '45, is one of the outstanding members of the staff of WMAZ where her newscasts and shows for women have thousands of listeners. Alice Price, A.B. '40, another Wesleyan graduate who studied at Wesleyan before the radio department was established, is an invaluable member of the WMAZ news staff, and Mary Ellen Findlay, A.B. '45, Mrs. Griffin and Mr. Carlile in the new radio studio on fifth floor, Main Building.

General Manager Wilton Cobb talks of a program with two Wesleyan alumnae who are members of the staff, Mary Ellen Findlay, center, who does the Better Films Chat, and Helen Farmer, who does Timely Topics and also a new program, Today with Helen.

is also a newscaster with special shows over WMAZ. Among last year's graduates, Alice Wasden has just accepted a position with Macon's WBML, doing two shows daily. Mary Collins, '47, has been working at a Gadsden, Ala., radio station for over two years.

A number of men are taking radio at Wesleyan, and some have come from as far as New York to study here, while others, like Dick Johnson, who also holds a WBML job are from Macon. The night class in radio being held at the Conservatory this semester has attracted both men and women in professional radio in Macon.

New studios have been opened on the fifth floor of old Main Building on College Street and new equipment installed will greatly increase the efficiency of the department.

John Snyder Carlile, the new director, is the author of a book, "The Production and Direction of Radio Programs" which radio-writing Max Wylie has called the most readable, understandable, and comprehensive text on the subject. Norman Corwin, famous radio producer, has said of Mr. Carlile: "He produces the most elaborate or the simplest program with equal competence and enthusiasm."

From 1940 to 1944, Carlile directed radio at the University of Alabama, where he was cited by the Federal Radio Education Committee for his work. His most recent position was with the department of state as divisional assistant for radio information. He is an A.B. graduate of Park College in Missouri, and attended Princeton Seminary where he majored in philosophy and comparative religion (at one time he was a Presbyterian minister), and Princeton graduate school. He did advanced work in experimental psychology at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Carlile's attractive young wife is a former student of journalism at the University of Alabama. They have a two-year-old son, and live in the Brookwood Apartments in Macon.

News commentator Richard Hottelet, recently in Macon for the silver anniversary of WMAZ, said that Wesleyan shows were of a high quality, and his plea was, "I beg you to keep radio on this extremely high plane, sincere, original, artistic, and professional."

Conservatory Offers Night Classes

Wesleyan Conservatory and School of Fine Arts opened classes at night in public speaking, professional fiction writing, speech fundamentals, and pottery for adults who are interested in advancing their professional training. These courses are open both to students who desire college credit, and to those who do not seek credit hours.

A course in radio is being taught by the new director of radio at Wesleyan, John Snyder Carlile; Mrs. Anne Frier-son Griffin, professor of speech and play-writing, is teaching fiction writing, with a special study of markets. Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Margaret Anderson Sharp, associate professor of speech, are offering courses in public speaking designed primarily for club women and church workers.

Gerhard Bosch, professor of fine arts, who teaches pottery and ceramics courses in the evening, has attracted much attention for his work with Georgia clays.

Miss Josephine Weaver, assistant professor of speech, is teaching speech fundamentals.

Changes In Faculty and Staff

We are happy to announce that among the new members of the faculty and staff this year are four Wesleyan alumnae and one alumnus: Rae (Stubbs) Ingley, Evelyn Smith, and Herbert Herrington to the fine arts faculty, Mary Jo Thompson and Evelyn (Estes) Somerville assistants to the dietitians on the liberal arts and conservatory campuses respectively.

New to the Liberal Arts Faculty:

Mildred Hudgins, Assistant Professor of Religion, received the A.B. degree from Randolph-Macon College, the M.A. from Scarritt College. She has also done graduate work at Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary. A former missionary to Japan, she comes to Wesleyan from the department of religion at Texas State College for Women.

Julia Johnston, Instructor in Psychology, received the A.B. and A.M. degrees with high honor from Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, her native city.

Ruby Wilcox Lafferty, Assistant Professor of Latin and Greek and history of art, A.B. from Vassar, M.A. from Mount Holyoke, further study at Yale, comes to Wesleyan from Louisiana State University in her home state.

Ralph Roger Williams, Instructor in Sociology, received law and journalism degrees from the University of Georgia, M.A. degree from Syracuse University.

New to the Fine Arts Faculty:

John Snider Carlile, Director of Radio, A.B. from Park College in Missouri, graduate study at Princeton and at the University of Pennsylvania, will have charge of Wesleyan's rapidly developing department of radio. (See article on the radio department in this issue of the magazine.)

Rae (Stubbs) Ingley, Assistant Professor of Voice, Wesleyan alumna, B.M. and M.M. from Eastman School of Music, returns to the conservatory faculty. Last year she was given the artist's diploma, highest award for performance made by Eastman School of Music, one of only six in the entire history of the school to earn such an award in voice.

Howard C. Ingley, Instructor in Piano, B.M. and M.M. degrees from Eastman School of Music where he held the George Eastman Scholarship. He has often appeared in recitals both as soloist and as accompanist. He was overseas in the European theatre with the U. S. Army in World War II. He comes to Wesleyan from the David Hochstein Memorial School of Music in Rochester. He is the husband of Rae (Stubbs) Ingley.

Herbert Herrington, Instructor in Piano and Organ, was a cum laude graduate of Wesleyan Conservatory, B.M. in 1945 in piano and in organ in 1946. He was organist and choir master of both St. Paul's Episcopal Church and the Temple Beth Israel in Macon, and a past Dean of the American Guild of Organists. He has taught privately in Macon since his graduation.

Evelyn Smith, Instructor in Organ and Piano, magna cum laude graduate of Wesleyan Conservatory in 1948, B.M. in both piano and organ. She is organist and choir director at Mulberry Street Methodist Church in Macon, member of the American Guild of Organists. Last spring she was presented in both piano and organ recitals at Wesleyan. As a student she was president of the College Government Association at the Conservatory, and was named Girl of the Year. She was holder of a Methodist Youth Scholarship.

Stella V. Tatlock, Instructor in Piano, A.B. from Indiana State Teachers College, M.M. from Northwestern University, piano study at the University of Illinois and at Indiana State Teachers College, come to Wesleyan from Terre Haute, Ind., where she has been supervisor of music in six elementary grades for the past two years.

New to the Staffs of Liberal Arts

College and Conservatory:

Mary Jo Thompson, A.B. Wesleyan in 1947, is Assistant Dietitian on the Rivoli campus. She taught in Collins, Ga. last year.

Mrs. Evelyn Estes Somerville, Wesleyan 1913, Assistant Dietitian at the Conservatory, returns to Wesleyan and to Macon, her home, after living for some years in Cleveland, Miss. She is the great granddaughter of James Dean, early trustee and benefactor of Wesleyan, the granddaughter of his daughter Arabella, who graduated in the class of 1845, and great niece of Henrietta, who was in the class of 1844. Her sisters, Lillian (Estes) Davis and Claude (Estes) Ingram, are alumnae, and her daughter, Joy, studied music at the Conservatory.

Herbert Herrington

Rae (Stubbs) Ingley and Howard C. Ingley

Evelyn Smith

Mary Jo Thompson

Mrs. Ruby Harrell, mother of Glover C. Harrell, Wesleyan Business Manager, has been appointed Postmistress at Rivoli.

Mrs. Howard Dunwoody began work in the summer as bookkeeper in the Business Office. She was formerly secretary and treasurer at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Macon.

News of the Faculty and Staff of Last Year:

Dr. Laura Voelkel, formerly Associate Professor of Latin and history of art, is now on the faculty of Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va. Her Wesleyan friends will be grieved to learn of the death of her mother which occurred since the opening of college.

George Jacob Avent, Jr., former Instructor in Religion, has joined the faculty of Hendrix College, a Methodist institution in Arkansas.

Elizabeth Stinson, who was Assistant Professor of Religion, is now with the Methodist Board of Missions, with headquarters at 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City. She writes that she has been terribly busy with meetings of the Board, but has enjoyed her new work. She recently had a delightful trip up the Hudson River Road to Poughkeepsie and Hyde Park.

Betty Sovorn, formerly Assistant Professor of Voice, was married to George Jennings during the summer, and they are now living in Providence, R. I., while he completes his work at Brown University there.

Sarah Robinson, former Assistant Professor of Piano, is teaching piano and public school music at Hendrix College.

Dr. Frances Ross Hicks, former Associate Professor of Psychology and Education, is now teaching at the Georgia State College for Women in Milledgeville.

New Staff Member For Alumnae Office

Mrs. Luther C. Harman of Greenville, Ga., has joined the Alumnae office staff as an assistant, a position which she is well qualified to fill. For the past five years she was Superior Court deputy clerk of Meriwether County; during the war she directed OPA food rationing in that county and earlier she had the responsibility of assembling the data for a county history.

Mrs. Harman, the former Pearl Sears, was reared on a plantation near Gainesville and grew up in the traditions of old-fashioned hospitality which she carried with her when she went as a bride to live in Greenville. During the four years that her only daughter, Elizabeth Harman, a magna cum laude graduate of 1947, was at Wesleyan, a wide circle of college girls learned to love Mrs. Harman who had so cordial a welcome for them when they accompanied Elizabeth home for the week-end visits.

The Harman family were pioneer settlers of Meriwether county and from her late husband Mrs. Harman inherited the farm there which has been in the family for more than a hundred years. In Greenville she took an active part in church and civic life. A member of the Methodist Church, she has been a Sunday School teacher since 1910 and has held many offices in the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Last summer, her daughter worked in the Alumnae office during the month of July, and Mary Dozier, A.B. 1935, during August, both of them proving invaluable in bringing the files up to date.

News Of A Former Wesleyan Teacher

News of Miss Lotta Greenup, who taught violin at Wesleyan from 1910 to 1918 came to the Alumnae Office this fall through Louise Lin, A.B. 1904, who saw her during the summer. Miss Greenup is teaching privately in a studio in her home in Philadelphia. For a time after leaving Wesleyan she taught at Curtis Institute.

Field Secretary Resigns To Be Married in December

Susan Jerome Lott, '46, who came to Wesleyan as Field Secretary last January, resigned in the summer to be married in December. (See announcement under "Weddings.")

During the months that Sue was in office, she made scores of friends for the college and strengthened old ties. She traveled much throughout Georgia and Florida, talking to prospective students, calling on alumnae, speaking before various groups.

Her fiance attended the University of Florida before he joined the Army Air Corps, where he served for three years, part of that time overseas as a navigator with the Eighth Air Force. At Emory University he has received the B.S. degree, and is now a sophomore at the School of Medicine. Sue plans to complete work on her master's degree at Emory after their marriage.

Annabel Horn Honored

Annabel Horn, A.B. 1906, recently appointed Assistant to the President of Wesleyan College, was honored with a surprise dinner party at the Sidney Lanier Home on High Street October 20 by members of the faculty and staff of Wesleyan Conservatory where she was Dean until her June appointment to the new post.

A Paul Revere bowl inscribed in appreciation from the faculty and staff was presented to her, Mrs. Albert Jelks, her successor, making the presentation.

Annabel Horn is a past president of the national Alumnae Association of Wesleyan, and was at one time Alumnae Trustee of the college. She is a past president of the Georgia Classical Association and of the Georgia Modern Language Association. For many years she was the beloved head of the Latin department at Girls' High School in Atlanta, and her Latin textbooks, published by Scott-Foresman, are widely used in schools all over the nation. A write-up about her appeared in a recent issue of "Who's Who in American Education."

Gerhard Bosch and Lucile Blanch of the art faculty executed the original placecards in watercolor. Alice Dominigos, Registrar, and Virginia Herrin, Dean of Women, and Mr. Bosch were in charge of arrangements.

"The Conservatory of today is due to the vision of Miss Horn," said Mrs. Jelks in presenting the gift from the faculty and staff. "All we have to do to attain greatness is to follow the program she has mapped out for us."

Benefactors' Day At Wesleyan

Benefactors' Day, October 15, a campus holiday at Wesleyan, was one of those beautiful, sunny days with a slight tinge of autumn in the air, and a blue haze over the trees, and it was agreed by all the college family to have been just perfect from start to finish!

The students were told to invite their parents to come for the entire day. They were to ramble over the two campuses to their hearts' content, to meet and chat with the faculty, to hear a talk by the distinguished Southern writer and lecturer, Archibald Rutledge, in the morning, to have barbecue lunch on the Rivoli campus, to hear Mrs. Anne Griffin of the speech department tell about Wesleyan's benefactors after lunch, and to hear Mr. Rutledge at the George Foster Pierce chapel in the evening.

By 10:00 A.M. the Rivoli campus was full of cars. Fathers and mothers arrived and made themselves at home, the "Pharm" was full of laughing groups of guests.

At 11:30 Dr. Rutledge, author of "Old Plantation Days," "Peace in the Heart," "Rain on the Marsh," "Home by the River," "God's Children," and numerous other volumes of prose and poetry, delighted his audience. The great men of all countries, he said, are the men who are firmly rooted in faith in a Divine Being so that the winds of circumstance cannot shake them. He cited men of all nations who prove this.

Immediately following Dr. Rutledge's talk, all the audience adjourned to the campus, where a delicious barbecue lunch was served by Miss Fannie White, dietitian, her assistant, Mary Jo Thompson, A.B. '47, aided by helpers from the faculty and student body.

After lunch, Mrs. Anne Frierson Griffin spoke to the group who assembled again at the Porter Gymnasium, telling in an informal and intensely interesting way about Wesleyan's first large benefactor, George I. Seney, New York banker, who made a gift to Wesleyan in 1881 of $125,000. She kept the students spellbound with a very graphic account of how Atticus G. Haygood, then president of Emory, full of remorse for a hasty word to one of the college servants, wrote a sermon, "Our Brother in Black," which was printed and widely distributed over the nation. A copy fell into the hands of Mr. Seney in Brooklyn, and he sent for Dr. Haygood and said, "I should like to make your college a gift. And I wish to give a similar amount to some woman's college in the South. Can you suggest a worthy one?"

Wesleyan's needs were presented to him, and when the announcement of his gift to the oldest college for women was made to the students on April 1, 1881, they thought it was an April Fool's joke!

Mrs. Griffin mentioned also later benefactions to the college, and reminded the students of the fact that in them lie the hopes and dreams of many good men and women of the past.

At 8:30 in the evening Dr. Rutledge spoke to a large audience at the chapel, telling stories out of his own rich experience that never fail to charm his hearers. He was introduced by his close friend of many years, Eugene Burden of Macon, grandson of former president of Wesleyan William C. Bass.

In closing the day's program, Dr. Silas Johnson expressed appreciation to the benefactors who have recently given approximately $60,000 for improvements in the conservatory plant, as well as to those Macon benefactors who have given to date $350,000 toward the Second Century Fund.

Wesleyan Begins One Hundred Eleventh Session

Wesleyan opened formally on September 23, with exercises in the George Foster Pierce Chapel, Dr. Glenn C. James of Miami, Fla. as speaker.

The enrolment of both campuses includes 549 students working for degrees, A.B.,

The following were absent when the picture was made: Mary Winn Harley, Jane Ives, Doranne Jennings.

B.F.A., and B.M.; 75 special and studio students, and 150 in the preparatory department.

The Conservatory has this year added five night classes in speech, radio, ceramics, and fiction writing, in which 41 students are enrolled. The Conservatory enrollment includes 19 veterans.

The students come from many distant places as well as from the area near Macon, the one from farthest away being a Chinese girl, Marian Wang, native of Shanghai, but now living in Calcutta, India, where her father is a banker. Three other Chinese students are enrolled on the Rivoli campus, and student Margaret Thoroughman, is the daughter of a medical missionary in China. There is a Korean student, Bo-Hi Yun, at the Conservatory. Margaret Yung, new sophomore, is a graduate of McIntyre School and has attended St. John's University in Shanghai.

Graziella Carlier comes from Strasbourg, France, where her school life was often interrupted by the sound of sirens and the falling of bombs.

Lidia Rosta Soto and Maria Rodriguez y Geno come from Cuba, Lidia as a junior and Maria a sophomore. Lidia studied at Colegio Buenavista in Havana, and spent last summer traveling with a Methodist Youth Caravan in eight Northwestern states. Maria studied at Pinar del Rio.

At the Conservatory is a niece of Mr. Leo Huckabee of Macon, who is leading the Second Century Fund Campaign for the college in this city. She is Charlotte Bullard of Sylvester.

On the liberal arts campus as a freshman is Alice Lee Weldon, who was registered as a prospective student when she was less than a year old. She represents the third generation of her family at the college.

One pair of twins, Jane and Mary Meadow of Elberton, are in the freshman class, and two sisters, Isabella and Frances Drew, are new transfer students.

Thirty-five students at Wesleyan this year have scholarship aid from some alumnae fund.

Below are the alumnae relatives of the new students, not including cousins too numerous to mention!

Ralph Lawton Recital

An all-Chopin program performed by Ralph Lawton, artist-in-residence at Wesleyan Conservatory on October 6, attracted a large and appreciative audience who demanded encore upon encore after the distinguished pianist had completed the numbers listed for his recital.

The concert featured the same works which Mr. Lawton had played at Wigmore Hall in London and at Pleyel Hall in Paris when he was abroad last summer. Included were two Polish songs arranged by Franz Liszt; three impromptus, Op. 36, Op. 51 and Op. 29; Ballad, Op. 23; Fantasie, Op. 49; and four Etudes, Op. 25, No. 1, Op. 10, No. 7, Op. 25, No. 5, Op. 25, No. 12.

Local critics were high in their praise of the pianist's performance. "The program was well arranged," declared one writer, "offering a selection from the works of Chopin which displayed varying aspects of his style ranging from introspective poetry to fiery impetuosity and which called upon all the technical resources at the performer's command. Mr. Lawton met the problems he had set himself with fine musical sensitivity and a keenness of intellect that made the evening exceptionally satisfactory."

Among the members of the audience were three who had heard Mr. Lawton's concert in London last summer—Miss Beatrice Horsbrugh, assistant professor of violin, a native of England home for a visit with her family; Edith (Culpepper) Turpin, '17, and her husband, William C. Turpin, who were on a holiday in England.

Conservatory Dean Honored

Doris Onderdonk Jelks was honored by her former home city of Syracuse, N. Y., when the city observed its centennial in August. A feature of the celebration was the recognition of native sons and daughters who have achieved distinction in various fields, among whom was General Jonathan Wainwright.

Mrs. Jelks, who had taught piano and organ at Wesleyan for 25 years before she became Dean of the Conservatory and School of Fine Arts in June, was one of three women who were officially cited, the others being the Dean of the graduate school of Fordham University and Madame Schumann, the pianist.

Wesleyan Artists Win Honors

Emil Holzhauer of the Wesleyan School of Fine Arts faculty was awarded the $300 purchase prize in the Third Annual Southeastern Exhibition of Oils and Watercolors, held in the High Museum of Art in Atlanta in October. The prize-winning oil, "Fish Beach," was one of several paintings which Mr. Holzhauer did in Maine during the past summer. Three of his pictures were hung in the show which contained 240 works selected from more than 800 entries.

The artist-teacher exhibited 25 oil paintings at the Wesleyan Gallery of Fine Arts from October 17 to November 1, all works which he did recently. The show attracted a large number of visitors, among them other distinguished artists throughout this section.

Professor Holzhauer's paintings have won many awards, including the Logan Medal in an international competition. In 1936 he received first place in the Southeastern Exhibition for a watercolor.

"The Gallery" in Atlanta Presents Georgia Artists

"The Gallery" at 88 Ellis Street N.E. in Atlanta, of which Eleanor (McDonald) Elsas, A.B. 1929, is co-owner had an Exhibition of Georgia Artists' paintings September 27 through November 30, and many of those represented had a special association for Wesleyan.

Emil Holzhauer, Lucille Blanche, and Gerry Bosch, all of the Wesleyan Fine Arts faculty, were exhibitors, as were Edward S. Shorter, and Nell Choate Shute, both of whom have paintings at Wesleyan in the Campbell Collection, and Hermione Walker Stevens, daughter of Wesleyan alumna, Hermione (Ross) Walker.

Public Relations Director Studies At Kenyon

Betty Thompson, '47, Wesleyan Public Relations Director, was a member of a select group of students who had the privilege of attending the school in literary criticism which Kenyon College at Gambier, Ohio, offered advanced students of literature during the past summer.

Only 78 students were admitted. Among them were teachers, painters, poets, nov-

THE AARON R. ALLEYS HAVE A SON

Wesleyan alumnae of the years between 1937 and 1944 will be interested to know that Aaron R. Alley and his wife have a young son, Aaron Richard, Jr., born in March. Mr. Alley was Bur-sar of the college during those years, and resigned to accept a position in Ma-con. His daughter, Elaine, born while he was associated with the college, is now in public school, and is planning to come to Wesleyan.

elists and several Jesuit fathers. Teaching fellows for the courses, which lasted six weeks, included eminent editors, professors, critics and writers. On the staff were such men as John Crowe Ransome, Carnegie professor of poetry at Kenyon and editor of its celebrated literary quarterly, The Kenyon Review; Allen Tate and his wife, Caroline Gordon, Cleanth Brooks, Jr., F. O. Matthiessen; two English critics, Eric Bentley and William Empson.

Conservatory Senior Wins National Award

A Conservatory senior, Theresa Rett of Macon, was notified early in October that her design of an evening gown had won a prize of $50 in the annual American Fashion Competition sponsored by the Chicago Tribune.

Theresa, along with other members of the fashion design class of Miss Esther Coudret, entered the contest which began last March, and was one of 40 winners from more than 5000 contestants. Since both experienced designers as well as students were allowed to compete, the young Wesleyan girl's creation was judged against the work of many professionals.

Sketches alone were submitted and from those chosen expert dressmakers fashioned the designs in fabric. The Tribune carried a double page spread in color featuring the prize winning costumes worn by professional models. Theresa's gown was of rose taffeta with a skirt of cocoa net.

During her senior year in high school this student won a scholarship to Wesleyan Conservatory, and each year the quality of her work has justified the renewal of that scholarship. Her major is, of course, fashion design and illustration.

The Wesleyan Second Century Fund and the Alumnae Loyalty Fund

In the August issue of the alumnae magazine was a list of alumnae of Wesleyan who had contributed either to the annual Loyalty Fund, or to the Second Century Fund. (We make no distinction this year, since all funds not otherwise allocated for this year and next will go into the Second Century Fund for Endowment.)

Since the last magazine went to press the alumnae listed below have contributed to one of these funds.

* * * * *

The total number of alumnae contributors.....1,358

The total amount contributed by alumnae....$90,387.80

* * * * *

An additional list of alumnae contributors will be used in the February magazine, which goes to press in January. Since October is the month for the campaign for Wesleyan through the Methodist churches we expect many additional alumnae contributors for this issue.

The month of October is "Wesleyan Month" among the Methodists of Georgia and Florida, and as the magazine goes to press reports are beginning to come in from various cities over the two states. A final report cannot be made until the next magazine.

On October 14 the Wesleyan Board of Trustees met on the Rivoli campus, with Mr. William D. Anderson, chairman, presiding.

District superintendents, ministers, and laymen have met in various centers during the recent weeks to lay plans for the church appeal.

On October 28 Bishop Arthur J. Moore spoke over radio to friends of Wesleyan in the interest of the Second Century Fund. Besides WMAZ in Macon, where the program originated, radio stations in the following cities carried his message: Albany, Americus, Athens, Atlanta, Augusta, Bainbridge, Brunswick, Cedartown, Columbus, Dalton, Dublin, Fitzgerald, Gainesville, Griffin, LaGrange, Moultrie, Newnan, Quitman, Rome, Savannah, Statesboro, Thomasville, Tifton, Valdosta, Waycross, and Jacksonville, Fla.

Ministers throughout both Georgia conferences asked members of their churches to aid in the cause of Christian education; ministers of the Florida conference cooperated with plans of the college for an appeal in Florida.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service, both in North and South Georgia, assisted the pastors in plans for presenting the needs of the college to the people. During the summer when the South Georgia Executive Board met at Wesleyan, Mary Addie (Murph) Mullino, President, Bessie (Houser) Nunn, and Octavia (Burden) Stewart met in the Alumnae Office and planned suggested program material to send to the local presidents of the WSCS.

Additions To The Historical Collection

The President's Medal in Voice which was awarded to the late Sallie (Stone) Branham, '85, the year of her graduation, has been presented to the historical collection by her daughter, Dr. Sara Branham, '07, distinguished scientist and former Alumnae trustee, who has herself won many honors. Sara, senior bacteriologist at the National Institute of Health, U. S. Public Health Service, in Bethesda, Md., and a doctor both of medicine and philosophy, is from a family who for generations have sent their daughters to Wesleyan. Her mother's mother, Elizabeth (Flournoy) Branham, 1840, was one of the very first class graduated from Wesleyan.

Eugenia (Coleman) Wasden, A.B. 1931, recently sent to the historical collection some interesting old pictures of Wesleyan students of the 1890's which were among the souvenirs of her mother, the late Edith (Stetson) Coleman, who was class secretary of 1897, and formerly a trustee of Wesleyan.

Remember the Wesleyan dining room silver which had "W.F.C." for "Wesleyan Female College" on it? The dietitian, Miss Fannie White, sent over for the historical collection a few pieces of that for old time's sake, and it has been added to the collection.

COLLECTION OF BOOK PLATES

The Candler Memorial Library of Wesleyan College has been presented with a valuable collection of book plates by Lila May Chapman, '90, former director of the Birmingham Public Library, the largest circulating library in the South.

Lila May Chapman, who retired last year after serving the Birmingham Library for nearly thirty-nine years, says that she became interested in book plates early in her career as she noted the wide variety of labels pasted in the old gift books which the library received from time to time. Her interest led her to write to individuals and to other institutions asking them for replicas of the plates used in identifying their own books.

Among the hundreds of plates, or "Ex-libris" as the French first called them, perhaps the most appealing to a Southerner is the design which Oliver Herford, celebrated English author, worked out for the Uncle Remus Branch of the Atlanta Carnegie Library, using the initials of Joel Chandler Harris to form "Brer Rabbit." Included in the collection are plates of such notables as Sir Joshua Reynolds, Eugene Field and George Washington, the latter being used by Washington Memorial Library in Macon.

Many famous colleges and schools are represented. There is the marker from the Oliver Wendell Holmes Library of the Phillips Academy at Andover, Mass., patterned after the plate used by Holmes and carrying the school seal created by Paul Revere. As national librarian for Phi Mu fraternity, Lila May is especially proud of the plate which chapter libraries use, chosen from many entries submitted in a contest which she sponsored several years ago to secure an appropriate Phi Mu marker, the winner receiving a $25 prize. The familiar Wesleyan seal has a place in the collection and there are many different plates from Princeton University. Family coats-of-arms, pictures of estates, or brief sermons on the virtue of returning books are popular subjects among the creators of the ex-libris.

This Wesleyan alumna has found her study of book plates to be very fascinating, for their use dates almost as far back as does the art of book making. It is the sort of hobby, that caused an English officer, badly smashed up in the war, to write that he now had time to return to his collection and having heard that she was also a collector, he was forwarding three plates from his family library in exchange for any which she might be able to send him.

Wesleyan Opens Her Doors To Many Groups During the Summer Months

Carolyn (Lawton) Harrell's interesting feature articles appear almost every week in the Macon Observer, through whose courtesy we are reprinting her splendid account of summer activities on the Wesleyan campus. During her college days, Carolyn studied journalism under Miss Virginia Garner, was on the staffs of the Watchtower, the Wesleyan and the Vetteropt, and served as campus correspondent for the Macon Telegraph in her junior and senior year. Her husband is Glover Harrell, Business Manager of Wesleyan College, and they and their two attractive daughters, Mary, 14, and Lyn, three, have lived in Rivoli for the past five years. They were in Belton, Texas for a few years while Mr. Harrell earned his A.B. degree with honor at Mary Hardin-Baylor College and Carolyn served as secretary to the president of that institution.

She is a group leader of the Macon Wesleyan Alumnae Club, a member of the Morning Music Club, and is active in Girl Scout work, being chairman of the organization's important Community Service Bureau for Bibb County. As an alumna she represents the fourth generation of her mother's family at Wesleyan—her mother is May (Nottingham) Lawton, '97; her grandmother was Emma (Guttenberger) Nottingham, '79; and her great-grandfather was Professor F. A. Guttenberger, beloved teacher of piano at Wesleyan for 30 years. Her aunts, cousins and other relatives who are alumnae would fill the page if we listed them all!

By Carolyn (Lawton) Harrell,
A.B., 1933

During the more than 100 years of its existence, Wesleyan has played an important part in the educational and cultural life of Georgia and the Southeast. During a part of that time, summer sessions have been held each year for the convenience of the college girls who wished to further their education during the summer months. For the past few years during the summer, however, Wesleyan has played a different, though equally as worthwhile, part in the life of the city of Macon, of the state, and of the Southeast.

Carolyn (Lawton) Harrell

So that the facilities of the college may be used to their fullest advantage, the college is now opening its doors during the summer, and during fall and spring holidays, to various civic, religious, professional, and governmental organizations which meet there in conference for from several days to a week or more. In attendance upon these conferences have been groups ranging from 100 to 350. Occasionally, when the individual groups have been small, two conferences have met simultaneously, to their mutual advantage.

Among the larger groups meeting on the campus this summer and last summer are Girls' State, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Georgia; the Business and Professional Women, representing 29 clubs throughout Georgia; the Rural Letter Carriers Association of Georgia, including the women's and children's auxiliaries; and the YMCA of Georgia's State-wide Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y club officers training conference. Included in the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y group are state, area, and district leaders.

Religious groups convening at Wesleyan have been numerous. The Christian church of Georgia has had conferences of its young people and adult groups, in addition to having its tri-state adult conference there. Representatives from Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina were in attendance. Among Presbyterian groups have been the women's auxiliary of the Synod of Georgia and the young people of the Presbyterian church of Georgia. The Primitive Baptists of Georgia have held two meetings of several days each at the college. The South Georgia conference of the Methodist Church has had a total of five different conferences on the campus, including the young people's assembly (which met at the same time that the Presbyterian young people met at the college); the senior assembly; the South Georgia Methodist Pastors' school; and the children's workers assembly. The Georgia Methodist student conference, composed of college boys and girls, held its meeting at the college, as did the area planning conference of the Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Florida Methodist conferences.

Other Groups On Campus

Smaller groups having Wesleyan as headquarters for meetings of shorter duration include the Georgia chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French; the Ingleside garden club of Macon; and the Rotary club of Macon, when the president of Rotary International was entertained.

Perhaps one of the most enthusiastic and appreciative of the groups to use the facilities of the campus is the Bibb county Brownie group. The young pre-Girl Scouts came out by bus each day from town, spent the day at rustic Anderson Cabin on the back campus, and worked and played in the surrounding pine woods. Highlights of their days on the campus were frequent swims in the college pool, and a guided tour of the college buildings and grounds. The Brownie day camp has become so popular that this summer the camp schedule was increased from one two-weeks session to two.

The college swimming pool has been the scene of much activity during the past two years in connection with the water safety program of the Bibb County Red Cross. Maconites numbering 315 were enrolled in Red Cross beginners' and intermediate swimming classes and received their instruction in the large, tiled, college pool. Senior Red Cross lifesaving course enrollees numbered 160. The Red Cross lifesaving instructors' course which has as a prerequisite the senior lifesaving course, has had 40 members in its classes. For several conferences at the college Red Cross lifeguards have served on a volunteer basis.

Particularly appealing, then, to conference goers, after a day of attending meetings, have been dips in the college pool. Another enjoyable spot for visitors is the downstairs playroom in the student activities building with its nearby soft drink and cracker machines. The golf and tennis courts are popular, as are the gymnasium and softball and soccer fields for larger group playing. The spacious dining room porch with its tall white columns and inviting coolness has always been a popular place with the visitors for buffet suppers and informal meetings and vesper services. The gently sloping golf course has been the scene of inspiring and impressive sunset friendship circles, made up of scores of attendants upon one of the conferences.

The large student lounge is used for evening meetings, for movies, and for listening to the radio and record player. The fountain in the center campus and the library steps, as well as other beauty spots on campus, are appealing to the amateur photographers in the groups.

So it is, through the service that Wesleyan has been able to render to various groups and organizations throughout Georgia and the South, that the influence of the college is widening and broadening beyond the scope of formal college education. Wesleyan can truly be said to be serving "beyond the call of duty."

College Time Thirty Years Ago

By Sara (Singleton) King, A.B. 1918

This delightful article will awaken memories in the hearts of many Wesleyannes whose college days were spent during an era when a motion picture, "Birth of a Nation," was a national event. Sara (Singleton) King's articles appear frequently in the Atlanta Journal Sunday magazine through whose courtesy we are reprinting this lively contrast of Then and Now. She is co-author with her aunt, Laura Singleton Walker, of "About 'Old Okefenok,'" a collection of sketches and photographs describing the second largest swamp in the United States. Once she sent Wesleyan a bond purchased with the proceeds from an article, "How a Wesleyanne's Ha's Sold Bonds," marking the gift from herself and her classmate, Genie Fincher.

But don't think that Sara uses all of her time in writing. Her beautiful home in Waycross is known for its gracious hospitality and she is active in the civic, church and social life of the community. Her husband, Mr. John H. King, is a prominent business man and their three children are a son, John H., Jr., who is also in business in Waycross following overseas war service and college years, two daughters, Lorena, and Sally.

For weeks I have been helping my daughter get ready for college. Any other mother who has been doing the same thing will enjoy reading about the "good old days" when daughter had only two best dresses, one coat suit, two or three pairs of high top shoes, two hats, one corset and an umbrella. And daughter even thought about the cost of those and wondered whether her father could afford so much.

In my mother's trunk I found the letters I had written her from Wesleyan College during the years of World War I. In them are many things other than descriptions of new clothes and their prices. There is the price of a trip to Atlanta to hear Caruso in "Samson and Delilah" and Farrar in "Madam Butterfly." "We leave here (by train) Monday morning, getting to Atlanta at twelve. We hear Caruso that night and Farrar the next afternoon. After the matinee we are going to have a little family banquet at the hotel before our train leaves. Mr. Maerz thinks the whole trip will not exceed $12. This includes train ticket, opera tickets, hotel charges, and banquet, but no other meals."

There was another kind of entertainment, however, which Wesleyan girls were not allowed to see.

"'The Birth of a Nation,' supposed to be the finest picture of the day, was at the Grand three days this week; but Mrs. Burks could not let us go because the Ministerial Association in Atlanta condemned it. She has seen it, however, and thinks it is grand."

One letter told how Wesleyan girls had voted against going to moving pictures which were "vulgar," but would go to see Mary Pickford or Marguerite Clark. The letter proves that Wesleyan girls knew how to go about censorship. "We asked the picture man and he has promised not to show any more William Fox pictures. That was about a month ago. I think we shall probably start going again soon."

They did not lack for entertainment, however, as evidenced by the letters.

"The Tech Glee Club in our chapel last night was a big success. Two boys sang a Hawaiian song and danced. They wore grass skirts over their evening suits and crowns of flowers on their heads and strings of flowers around their necks. It was the hit of the evening. After responding to an encore, they came back a third time and threw their flowers into the audience among the Wesleyan girls."

Though Mrs. Burks appeared very broad-minded about "The Birth of a Nation" she seems to have curbed us on many other occasions.

"Last night the Y.W.C.A. gave an old-fashioned pound party. The Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores were asked to dress as little boys and the Freshmen and Specials as girls. It turned out, however, that we were all dressed as girls. Mrs. Burks would not let us wear bloomers because our one old bachelor teacher was going to be there, and it would not be ladylike for us to show our legs."

Thus it must have been that we were distinctly ladies there and then at Wesleyan; but letters about peek-a-boö blouses and camisoles certainly prove that we were not above wanting to interest the male.

"The next camisole you make me I want a 'shore nuf' swell one, made of white crepe de chine, no sleeves please, and ribbon straps."

Much of the discipline described in the letters and accepted as a matter of course would amaze college girls today.

"I was excused from going to church yesterday since I did not feel well. When you are excused from church on Sunday you are not allowed to leave the campus on Monday. Therefore Dorothy is shopping for the thread you wanted."

While discipline was accepted matter of factly, monthly allowance checks were not.

"Thank you for the check ($15.00). It was certainly needed. I am going to buy a middy blouse, a hat, a pair of slippers, a pair of hose, and gloves with it, besides paying for one lens to my glasses which I broke. I think that will be about $1.50 or $2.00."

The need of saving and of buying war bonds was impressed on the girls' minds. I was wanting to make a week-end trip home.

"... but with the Germans within sixty miles of Paris and with people starving over there and our Government pleading for money, I don't know whether I ought to go or not. It will be a sacrifice not to go, but that's what is going to win the war. Please don't write me to do what I want to; say 'yes' or 'no,' because I can't decide."

All through the letters girls are wanting clothes and hating to buy. Maybe the lengthy descriptions we gave of the new styles eased the desire some. These letters would serve amply as a guide to anyone today for the "New Look."

In everything, however, the letters show simply that girls of that day and girls of today have the same thoughts, desires and ambitions. We hated examinations. "Don't you or anyone else ever tell me that while I am in school I'm eating my bread and butter," I wrote while describing the horror of examination week.

Literally, however, we were eating our bread and butter. Letter after letter told of the most amazing boxes of food sent from home. Cakes, cookies, candies, potato salad, sandwiches, whole baked turkeys, whole gallons of chicken salad, either of which we today would be scared to death to send for fear of food poisoning, unless they were cooked and sealed by modern factories, not in our own kitchens.

Altogether the letters have reviewed for me a new life which my daughter is entering now. In one of them I quoted a salutation to a letter which I had gleaned from my old English study, "I recommend me you." That I shall remember and wish her too. These letters my mother saved will make me understand my daughter better and should make her know me better. Perhaps they will recommend us, each to the other.

Two Alumnae Publish Books This Fall

"We Gather Together"

by Sara Jenkins, A.B. 1926

Sara Jenkins has added her name to the lengthening list of alumnae authors with the publication of her first novel, "We Gather Together," released by Thomas Y. Crowell Company of New York, on August 5.

Sara's book tells the story of an old-fashioned Georgia family in which six brothers are Methodist ministers as were her own father and five brothers. Drawing on her childhood memories of the long summer reunions at her grandmother's home in a small town, the author has produced a chronicle which seems almost auto-biographical. Jennie Gordon, young, sensitive, is the central character and it is through her eyes that the reader meets the counterpart of the famous Jenkins clan, the Gordon brothers. Grandma Gordon assembled all of her children, their wives, and the grandchildren, at her home each summer, bestowing so much honest affection (and good cooking) on all that they left regretfully when the vacation ended.

"We Gather Together" received many favorable reviews and was endorsed by Methodist groups, represented by the Methodist Publishing House. The Book-of-the-Month Club recommended the novel to its readers in its September bulletin. Sara was honored at autographing parties in Miami and Tampa, Fla., in Atlanta, and elsewhere.

The novelist is the daughter of the Rev. I. C. Jenkins, who wrote a devotional study on The Sermon on the Mount, and a niece of the late Dr. C. R. Jenkins, former president of Wesleyan College. Her great-grandfather was the noted Georgian circuit rider, the Rev. Leonard C. Rush, who spent more than 70 years in the service of the Methodist Church.

While a student at Wesleyan, Sara studied journalism under Miss Virginia Garner, in her junior year winning a prize in short story writing. At present she is teaching high school journalism in Miami and directing school publicity by day, and in the evening has classes in adult English. Rather a full schedule but it does not keep her from writing for she has another novel finished and ready to go to the publisher!

"Meet Mrs. Yu"

by Mary Culler White, A.B. 1891

Mary Culler White's fifth book, published by the Abingdon-Cokesbury Press, is "Meet Mrs. Yu," the story of a humble but heroic woman whose career of quiet achievement amazed all who knew her. Mother of twelve children, of whom eight now live as evidence of the quality of their rearing, she worked alongside her preacher husband to build little islands of Christianity amid an ocean of superstition and fear. She strove with ignorance, poverty and hostility, and meanwhile changed herself from an awkward, illiterate country girl tottering on bound feet to a poised and efficient leader in China's metropolis.

The life story of this outstanding Chinese woman is told with warmth and honor by one who has known her through the years, and Mrs. Yu's daughter, Yui Hsiu-li wrote for the book an Introduction which states that the picture of her mother is a true and accurate one.

The publisher states: "You will find Mrs. Yu a fascinating personality, and in her you will see something of how and why the Christian movement is spreading throughout China."

Mary Culler White, like Sara Jenkins, is a former student of Miss Virginia Garner at Wesleyan, having spent one year of a furlough in the 1920's studying journalism at Wesleyan while she was writing the biography of her aunt, Alice Culler Cobb. (The proceeds from this book she gave to the Greater Wesleyan Fund of the 1920's.)

Since her retirement from the mission field, she has made her home in Conyers, but she travels extensively over the South, making talks over radio and before various groups on The Orient. She spent some time at Wesleyan last year writing an article about Laura Haygood, Wesleyan alumna and outstanding missionary to China, for The Wesleyan Alumnae.

She has also been entertained at "autographing parties" in various cities since her book was published, and at Davison's in Macon received many friends from Macon, Perry, Hawkinsville, and other nearby towns.

New Painting For Campbell Collection

The one hundred and first painting arrived in October for the Campbell Collection at Wesleyan, given to the college by the artists through the influence of one Wesleyan alumna, Helena E. (Ogden) Campbell.

Sara Jenkins

Katharine M. Howe, artist, sent a very lovely watercolor, "New York Rooftops" to Wesleyan. She is a native of Norwich, Conn., and studied at the Norwich Art School, winning two scholarships to the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, where she studied under Philip Hale and Henry Hunt Clark. Later she continued her studies at the Art Students' League in New York.

Before her marriage in 1928 to Marshall Howe of New York, she was on the faculty of the Norwich Art School as instructor in drawing. She is the author and illustrator of three children's books, two already published and one in the process of publication. She was associate designer with J. Gordan Guthrie of New York for a stained glass window for the Children's Sunday School room in Riverside Church, New York.

The painting which she gives to Wesleyan has been exhibited as follows: in 1946 in the Annual Water Color Exhibition, National Association of Women Artists; 1947 Mystic Art Association Exhibition, Mystic, Conn.; 1947, in one man show, New York City.

The paintings in the Campbell Collection hang in the various rooms on the Rivoli campus, and a printed catalog is available for visitors. The Alumnae Office has an interesting scrapbook with newspaper clippings, letters, etc. about each artist. This fall one of the students at the Conservatory, Anne McKay, is making photographs of each painting to be kept in a permanent catalog.

Charles J. Haden Dies

Charles J. Haden, retired attorney and well-known Georgia historian, died in Atlanta in May at the age of 85 years. Wesleyan alumnae in reunion at Commencement sent a message of sympathy to his widow, Anne (Bates) Haden, A.B. 1888, who is a former national president of the Alumnae Association, and former Alumnae Trustee of the college.

Mr. Haden, a native of Huntsville, Ala., moved to Atlanta in 1881 when the city boasted a population of approximately 35,000. He once told a reporter that he could remember when a sign reading, "City law, no boating on this spot" was posted at the Marietta Street mud hole between Forsyth Street and Five Points.

Intensely interested in preserving Southern historical data, he caused many historical markers to be built, and donated a memorial shaft to Stephen Foster on the banks of the Suwannee River near the Okefenokee Swamp, and another to William H. Crawford, Georgia Statesman, at Crawford, Ga. He was a friend and attorney of the late G. V. Gress, who gave the painting of the Battle of Atlanta and the zoo to the City of Atlanta, and as his attorney handled the details of the historic grant.

Mr. Haden was a charter member of the Piedmont Driving Club, a member of the Capital City Club, and past president of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce. He was a Mason and a member of the First Methodist Church, where he served on the Board of Stewards for more than 30 years.

Friends of Anne (Bates) Haden will be grieved to learn that she has not been well in recent months. The alumnae of her Alma Mater sent a gift of lavender and purple asters to her recently to express their love and appreciation for her leadership of the Association in the past.

The Macon Wesleyan Alumnae Club held its first fall meeting on September 22 in the Dorothy Blount Lamar Room at Wesleyan Conservatory with Roberta (Jones) Gardiner, president, presiding.

Dr. Silas Johnson, Wesleyan president, and Mr. Leo Huckabee, Macon, chairman for the Second Century Fund campaign, spoke to the club. Dr. Johnson reaffirmed that Christian education is the hope of the world and he reminded Alumnae of the invaluable contribution which is being made through their scholarships to Wesleyan. He spoke of the many changes and improvements made on the two campuses during the summer and both he and Mr. Huckabee discussed progress being made in the campaign.

The secretary, Martha (Orr) Hutchinson, read letters of appreciation from three Wesleyan students who hold Macon Club scholarships, Bettie Jean Williams, Patsy Walsh and Ann Clark. In addition to the Club's scholarships are those given by Octavia (Burden) Stewart, Linda (Anderson) Lane, and one which is the joint gift of Mr. R. A. Bowen and his wife, Lottie (Felder) Bowen.

Mrs. Doris Jelks, Dean of Wesleyan Conservatory and School of Fine Arts presented Jack Hutchinson, Conservatory pupil, who played two piano selections. Following the meeting, refreshments were served by Sara (Flowers) Jennings and her committee, who used the handsome silver punch bowl and cutwork table cloth, treasures from the lovely home of the late Nettie (Dunlap) Wortham, former Wesleyan trustee and benefactor.

Other officers of the Macon Club, all of whom were present, are: Margaret (Black) Pittman, first vice-president and chairman of high school relations; Mildred (Goodrum) Heyward, Jr., second vice-president, ways and means chairman; Eloise (Davis) Culverhouse, third vice-president, town and campus chairman; Valeria (McCullough) Murphey, fourth vice-president, Conservatory chairman; Margaret (Murphey) Martin, treasurer; Essie (Skellie) McCook, registrar; Freda (Kaplan) Nadler, publicity director; Mary (Nicholson) Ainsworth, Sara (Flowers) Jennings, Emma (Drew) Clay, Carolyn (Lawton) Harrell, Wray (Shepherd) Marsh and Louise Pate, group leaders.

Earlier in the month, the president had assembled the members of the executive board at a luncheon to make plans for this first meeting and also for a benefit bazaar to be held on Nov. 12-13 at the Conservatory as the Club's major money-raising project of the year. For this affair both faculty and students cooperated with Alumnae and all worked to make the occasion a success. Needlework, flowers, bulbs, pot plants, and choice foods were on sale and there were various forms of entertainment offered, even pony rides for the children.

Another plan to make money for the Club this year is that of serving punch during intermission at the Community Concerts which are held in the Conservatory Auditorium during the winter.

The Junior Wesleyan Alumnae group held its first meeting of the year on Sept. 8 at the home of Mamie (Griffith) Denson. Maurine (Meilenz) Pendleton, president, introduced Belle (Ross) Valentine, former president of the Macon Alumnae Club, who discussed what the junior group could do to remain an integral part of Wesleyan and how its members could stimulate cooperation among all Wesleyan Alumnae in Macon.

Atlanta

Wesleyan Alumnae Group VI honored Atlanta girls who were to enter Wesleyan this fall and members of the Atlanta Alumnae Club at a morning coffee at the home of Jo Beth (Apperson) Garrard, 3378 Habersham Road on September 8.

Receiving with the hostess were Mary Alice McDougall, chairman of Group VI, Nonie (Acree) Quillian, president of the Atlanta Club, Annabel Horn, assistant to the president of Wesleyan College, and Mrs. Doris O. Jelks, director of Wesleyan Conservatory and School of Fine Arts.

Thomaston

The Wesleyan Alumnae Club of Thomaston feted the members of the junior and senior classes and the faculty of R. E. Lee High School at a tea in September at the home of Rachel (McDaniel) Nelson, '32.

Wesleyan colors were carried out in the decorations, and copies of the Veropt were displayed in the living room.

Frances (Horner) Middlebrooks, '27, and Martha (Davis) Moseley, '34, served punch. Others assisting were Anne (Gilmore) New, '49; Gheraltine (Knox) Holland, '24; Effie (McDaniel) Ingram, '25; Annie Jo (Barron) Salter, '33; Madge (Lawn) Slade, '48; Mary Chatfield, '20; and Sarah Ann (Kilpatrick) Head, '44.

Tifton

The Wesleyan Alumnae Club of Tifton entertained pastors, alumnae, and friends of Wesleyan for the Valdosta District in the Church School Building at the Methodist Church recently.

Margaret (Toney) Bowen, '26, chairman, assisted by Katharine (Rountree) Christian and Wilda (Maddox) Wilson, Cons. '40, prepared and artistically decorated the tables for 75 guests. Eula (Miller) Massey, '10, president, Marian (Padrick) Woodard, '21, Elizabeth (Padrick) Snelson, '25, Lena (Baker) Bryan, '05, Harriet (Evans) Southwell, '25, Alice Hodges, '25, and Clare McKellar,

Le Vert (Shepherd) Eubanks

'07, served a delicious turkey dinner.

The Rev. John A. Sharp, District Superintendent, presented Dr. Silas Johnson, president of Wesleyan, who told of some of the more recent history of the first college chartered to grant degrees to women.

Waycross

The Alumnae of Waycross entertained at the home of Eddie Mae (Barrett) Spear in honor of the following girls from their city who were entering the Freshman Class at Wesleyan in September: Jackie Norman, Mary Wynn, Jeanette Murray, Doris Roberson and Emily Tillman.

They were presented scrapbooks and Wesleyan stickers for their luggage, the presentation having been made by Peggy Milton, member of the junior class at the Conservatory and daughter of Mabel (Bond) Milton, '26. Sue Lott, '46, showed colored slides of Wesleyan and spoke briefly on the history of the college. The refreshments included tiny cakes iced in pale lavender and embossed with a purple "W".

Other Alumnae present were: Nell (Bates) Penland, '20; Julia (Bell) Pierce, '31; Estelle (Bunn) Johnston, '05; Marguerite (Crowley) Davis, '93; Frances (Holden) Morrison, '15; Nina Bell (Hopkins) Knight, '35; Dorothy (Quillian) Smith, '32; Elna Peagler, '40; Peggy (Watt) Brown, '43; Carolyn (Stapleton) Cannon, '41; Florrie (Woodward) Strickland, '30.

Birmingham

Le Vert (Shepherd) Eubanks is the very capable president of the Birmingham Wesleyan Alumnae Club. She insists that Virginia Tullis, '39, be given much credit for the work which the group has accomplished.

The Birmingham Alumnae have held several meetings during the Second Century Fund campaign and have met with success. Forrest (Pitts) Blackwell, '11, a member of the Birmingham Club, has served as Second Century Fund chairman for the state of Alabama.

The club has within the past months sponsored two teas and a luncheon. It was this club which first heard Forest (Pitts) Blackwell give her entertaining and informative talk on Antique Furniture. When Lila Mae Chapman retired as director of the Birmingham Public Library, Wesleyan Alumnae there feted her at a large tea and when Willie Snow Ethridge spoke in Birmingham club members were on hand at the dinner given in her honor.

It was through the influence of Alumnae that Louise Philips, a Wesleyan student, was named to the college board of Birmingham's leading department store, Pizitz.

Washington, D. C. Club

The Washington Wesleyan Alumnae Club held its quarterly meeting in the Crystal Room of the Burlington Hotel on September 25, Odille (Dasher) Phelts presiding. Twenty Wesleyan alumnae were present, the meeting opening with the Alma Mater.

Christine Moore, A.B. '29, was speaker, telling of her experiences in Rio de Janeiro while her husband was on a two-year assignment for the Department of State. Odille (Dasher) Phelts, Alumnae Area Chairman for Washington, reported on the Second Century Fund. Martha (Lewis) Chandler and Agnes Leverette and Leona (Letson) Wiley were appointed on the nominating committee.

News of the club members follows:

Fairfid (Monsalvatge) Caudle was introduced at the Federal Bar Association luncheon on September 30 when Sir Stafford Cripps of Great Britain was speaker. Fairfid is an active member of the Democratic Women's Party.

Annette (Richardson) Chappell toured Michigan during the summer with her husband and two children. Effie (Landrum) Shelton's son, Chastain, graduate of Princeton, has been sent to Paris for two years as an official of the Economics Cooperation Administration. Another son, James, Harvard graduate, is an attorney in Birmingham, Ala.

Mary Gray (Munroe) Cobey, wife of the treasurer of Maryland University, is the mother of five children. Roberta (Cason) Cox is recovering from an operation in the summer.

Faye (Killingsworth) Geeslin is an active member of the Georgia State Society in Washington. Cornelia (Adams) Heath recently attended the marriage of her daughter, Eva, in Macon. Another daughter is a home economics teacher in Valdosta Junior College. Kathryn (Hopper) Connally is happy over the arrival of her new daughter.

Wynelle (Wheless) Hudson is the wife of an official with the Department of Agriculture, is an active worker in the Mt. Vernon Place Methodist Church.

Agnes Leverette is busy with two positions; she works for the Navy Department during the day and in the evenings and Saturdays for a printing firm.

Emily (Heath) McDaniel enjoys the many cultural opportunities of the nation's capital, and is often seen at the National Gallery of Art.

Anne (Morton) Morton, who serves as treasurer of the Wesleyan Club in addition to many other duties, is still very pretty.

The Washington Club is looking forward to the return of Mary Lou (Martin) Davis when Congress reconvenes, "Jim" being representative from Fulton County District.

Carol Arnold is publicity chairman of the club. She is on the official board of Mt. Vernon Place Methodist Church, and holds a position with the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Lucy (Cunyus) Mulcahy and Dorothy Ann (Pim) Roth are two new members of the club. Betty Hearn, writer for the International Press Division of the State Department, was also welcomed into the club in September.

Religious Emphasis Week

Dr. Osbert Wrightman Warmingham, associate director of the American Youth Foundation and one of the nation's outstanding leaders in the field of religion, was Wesleyan's religious emphasis week speaker, beginning November 14.

Dr. Warmingham has taught in Boston University for 20 years, and is well known as a philosopher, poet, and religious leader. He is the author of a volume of verse, "Singing Sands and Silver Sea" which is said to combine the mystical spirituality of the East with the ethical concepts of the West. He was born in India, a descendant of four generations of British army officers, and studied at Oxford University and at the University of Wisconsin.

Phi Delta Phi Presents Member Speaker

Phi Delta Phi Day on the Rivoli campus will be November 30, and at this time the Society which honors scholarship on the liberal arts campus will present their member, Elizabeth Peck, A.B. 1926, of Meridian, Miss., as speaker.

Elizabeth has the distinction of being the only woman certified public accountant in Mississippi, and has recently been signally honored in being elected the first woman on the city council of Meridian. She will serve as one of the first officials under the new Council-Manager form of government to begin January 1, 1949. The Meridian paper states:

"It is believed that Miss Peck may be the second woman ever to hold a municipal office in the Mississippi territory. A public accountant, she is considered one of the more astute persons in the city's business life at this time."

While making for herself an enviable reputation as a business woman, Elizabeth Peck has also found time for extensive participation in many community affairs. She is a member of the Girl Scout Council, which she organized when she was director of the Meridian Girl Scouts; she is treasurer of the Fewell Survey Community Center; and she is adult adviser of the 'young people's society of the First Presbyterian Church of which she is an active member.

She has been a partner in the firm of Ready and Peck, Certified Public Accountants, but is this fall establishing her own firm in Meridian.

New members of the Society will be inducted immediately before the chapel program at which the speaker will be presented.

Phi Delta Phi begins the new school year under the splendid leadership of a new president, Frieda (Kaplan) Nadler, A.B. '26. Elizabeth Winn, A.B. '25, is secretary. The society was organized in 1924, and has taken into membership 145 girls at Wesleyan, outstanding for their scholarships on the liberal arts campus.

In 1943 the Phi Delta Phi, through the voluntary contributions of members, gave a $100 scholarship to a Wesleyan student. Every year since that time they have given at least one, and several time two $100 scholarships, in addition to their gifts to the Second Century Fund. Two recipients of these scholarships have been elected to membership in the Society.

After the chapel program on November 20 when Elizabeth Peck will speak, all member of Phi Delta Phi have been invited to have lunch in the college dining room, where special tables will be reserved for them.

CLASS NOTES1879

India (Holt) Rambo makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. John A. Cherry, 326-B Zettell Street, Hunter Field, Savannah, but spends some of her time with her son and another daughter. She richly deserves the wide circle of friends who admire her tremendously for, having lost her sight several years ago, India learned to read Braille fluently when she was well past seventy. Now she also uses a "Talking Book" and the radio to keep her up to the minute on world affairs and her daughter reads The Wesleyan Alumnae aloud in order that she can keep up with Wesleyan news. She knits and crochets and has made three bedspreads since she became blind. Mrs. Cherry writes that India is well and happy and looking forward to attending commencement in 1949.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Itura (Moreland) Leigh of Grantville in the tragic deaths of her two grandsons, one month apart. Both young men served in the recent World War, and returned home free from harm. Allen Fort Colley and William O. ("Billy") Colley lost their lives in plane crashes a few weeks ago. Itura writes: "This indescribable sorrow has almost paralyzed me with grief. I have had much heartache in my life, but God has abundantly blessed me, too. It was through faith and prayer that I was able to give the first home for superannuate preachers in the North Georgia Conference, and in my home there is a room set aside for visiting ministers which we call 'The Prophet's Chamber.' Some of those who have occupied it are the late Samuel P. Jones, George Stuart, Bishop Candler, Dr. Young J. Allen, and the Rev. Allen Fort. Let me quote to you the prayer of my grandson, Lt. Allen Fort, just before he left for the war: 'Dear God, give us courage to fight without hate, to die without fear, and to be victorious without vengeance.'"

"Our favorite lady," the Macon Civitan Club called Annie (Cargill) Cook recently when the 100 members presented her with a framed photograph of her husband, Dr. Ed F. Cook, the picture which the Macon Observer had used for its cover earlier. Dr. Cook, long-beloved former pastor of the Vineville and Mulberry Street Methodist Churches and a member of the Civitan Club said: "It's wonderful to have a wife with whom one has lived in peace and happiness for 55 years. I wish you all the same years of blessings, and multiplied."

1886

Anne (Allen) Johnston sends her love and best wishes to her Alma Mater from her home in Tampa, Fla. She writes that she is bed-ridden from arthritis, but she writes cheerfully and is especially pleased that the class of '86 sang the song which she wrote at their last reunion.

When the Macon Retail Merchants Bureau had its annual outing at the Idle Hour Country Club in July, Blanche (Hall) Neel's husband, Joseph N. Neel, dean of Macon merchants and an organizer of the Bureau, was on hand to enjoy the day's events. "Uncle Joe," as Macon people know him, was 91 years old on November 14.

Emma Smith says that the prayers of countless good friends are responsible for her recovery from the bad fall of last year which kept her in the hospital for weeks. She has moved and is now living at 142 Rogers Avenue in Macon. Recently when she was in Perry she called on Stella (Duncan) Cater and found her looking "simply beautiful and surrounded by her children and grandchildren."

Sallie Boone celebrated her birthday on a Sunday afternoon in September at her home in Macon. Hosts of friends called during the day and showered her with gifts, but the highlight of the day came when a committee from the Sallie Boone Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Church called and expressed their most fervent wishes for Sallie's return to health and to teaching the class again as she did for so many years (their gift was a handsome handbag). The Macon Observer carried a long article on the occasion and a picture of Sallie looking remarkably well and happy. Here is a paragraph from the article: "Miss Sallie came to Mercer as librarian in 1904 and stayed until her retirement in 1934 . . . The darling of three decades of Mercer students, including latter-day co-eds, Miss Sallie seldom spends a week without a visit from some old grad, or a party of them, who stops by for a taste of her vigorous, fond and cordial talk. Many a balding, paunchy man or lean gray alumnus comes a-knocking at her door, to be hailed with her famous 'Hello-o-o-!' as a 'dear, dear boy' and to settle down for some lively chat."

1888

Nan (Carmichael) Beeland and her husband recently spent a week in New Orleans in celebration of their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary. Their two sons are their greatest joy. Harvey, is traveling auditor for the Southern Pacific Railroad, and lives in Houston, Tex. He has two daughters, and five grandchildren. Charles, the son who made the beautiful film, "The Smile of Promise" for Wesleyan during the Centennial year, 1936, has recently finished a lovely film for Pan American Airways, and also one for the Atlanta Community Chest. Charles lives in Atlanta.

Pioneer ancestors of Mamie (Haygood) Ardis' late husband were given much front-page space in the 75th Anniversary edition of the Downey (California) Live-wire. The Rev. John Ardis, her husband's father, settled in Downey after traveling with his family by wagon caravan from Eldorado, Ark., a journey of six months, and helped build the community, holding Methodist services in the homes until he could get a school building erected which served a double purpose.

Carrie Speer has been in Atlanta for some time to be near a nephew who is ill in Lawson General Hospital. She writes that she spent several hours with Carrie (Farris) Rose who lives with her son, Julian. She has made a remarkable recovery after a serious fall in which she broke her hip. Carrie has recently heard that her roommates of sixty years ago, May and Carrie Duncan, are both widows and living together in their old home town, Union, S. C. May is Mrs. R. P. Harry, and Carrie is Mrs. Coggeshall.

Louise (Morse) Riddle writes from Chattanooga, Tenn.: "One of our classmates, Amanda (Beeland) Homan, died some years ago, but left a daughter, Janie Homan, who lives here and is principal of one of the schools and a very fine teacher."

Anita (McClendon) Miller visited the University of North Carolina in August, spending her time at the Carolina Inn. Such famous authors as Paul Green, Betty Smith, and James Street, were there then, as were lesser literary lights, according to Anita, who has made a name for herself as a poet. Recently her poem, "Nightingale and Mockingbird," appeared in Driftwind, a poetry magazine.

1890

Hattie (Saussy) Saussy writes from her home at 124 East 45th Street in Savannah: "I think that Sallie B. (Comer) Lathrop's idea of a contribution to the Loyalty Fund of a 'dollar a year' for every year since graduation is fine. Enclosed find mine, based on the number of years since 1890!"

1893

Classmates and other friends will be saddened at the news of the death of Mary Rix (Bryan) Lawrence which occurred at her home in Baxley on September 3 after a long illness. Funeral services were held at the First Methodist Church there, but she was buried in the century old Bryan cemetery in Houston County, near Kathleen and her old home. The daughter of Abner Council Bryan and Harriette Taylor, Mary Rix was the widow of Henry J. Lawrence, former editor of the Talbotton New Era and teacher, who practiced law in Baxley for more than 30 years, until his death several years ago. Sympathy is extended to their children who are: John A. Lawrence and Mrs. Stanley P. Brobston, Baxley; Oscar Bennett Lawrence and Mrs. George Sackman, Jacksonville, Fla. Mary Rix loved Wesleyan and often returned to visit the college where she had spent so many happy hours. Writing of her death, the Talbotton New Era said: "She was a noble woman, who 'loved all things bright and beautiful; all things great and small'."

Susie Adele (Middleton) Corbett is an active member of Trinity Methodist Church in Miami, Fla. In addition to being chairman of literature and publications for the Trinity Women's Society of Christian Service, she is an officer in her Sunday School class.

Martha (Morehouse) Bowen writes from her home in Atlanta: "I am sure that you can count on my Class and my Wesleyan Group, No. One, in every way that it is possible for us to be responsive and loyal. In Loula (Evans) Jones we had a splendid class secretary for so long and we feel her loss keenly."

1894

Alice (Leverette) Collins of Eatonton, Ga., has retired after 45 years of teaching. Her first teaching experience was in Bulloch County. Later she taught in Coweta and Henry Counties. At the time of her marriage she considered her teaching days over, but in 1908 her husband died, leaving her with three little girls, and she returned to the classroom. Her last position was with the Imperial Mill School, where she has taught for 20 years.

1897

Rosa (Guerry) Snowden's son, Mr. Guerry Snowden, has sent his check for one of the Chopin albums which Prof. Joseph Maerz has made for the Wesleyan Alumnae Association.

Sympathy is extended to Corinne (Lawton) Jordan in the death of her son, Robert G. Jordan, real estate dealer of Birmingham, Ala., on August 1.

Lucy (Evans) Stephens writes: "When I read of Wesleyan's 111th opening I wished I had a daughter starting at Wesleyan. I realized especially at our class reunion in May how much more contact I had had with Wesleyan and how many friendships I had made or renewed because of the 12 years when my daughters were at Wesleyan—now I am looking forward to sending the three granddaughters some day. Dr. Stephens and I hope to pay a visit to the College some day—he hasn't been quite satisfied since he missed the 50th Reunion. . . . I never had a better time, thanks to your planning for our pleasure."

Ada (Heath) Montgomery writes to her class secretary, Lucy (Evans) Stephens: "I ran into Mary (Lucky) Kelso this summer, after fifty years! I told her about our class reunion, and she seemed most interested. Her address is: Hotel Arnold, Knoxville, Tenn."

I am myself moving to 1532 Queen's Road where I am getting a downstairs apartment which will suit me better.

Classmates and other friends were grieved at the death of Frances (Payne) Willingham which occurred at her Macon residence on August 26 after an illness of several weeks. Frances was the daughter of William Sims Payne and Cecila (Willingham) Payne of Macon and had lived there most of her life. She was an active member of the First Baptist Church and the Women's Missionary Union and of the DAR Nathaniel Macon Chapter. Sympathy is extended to her survivors who are: her husband, T. Marion Willingham, a brother, W. S. Payne, Jr., a sister, Cecelia (Willingham) Groves and several nephews and nieces.

Geraldine (Dessau) Wheeler's son, Robert Prentiss Wheeler, cabled her from Tokyo in August of the arrival of his little daughter, named Rosella Chadwick for his wife's mother. Their older daughter, Gerry, named of course for Geraldine, is five.

An article in the Atlanta Journal magazine section for October 3 about Louise (Frederick) Hays, Director of the Georgia Department of Archives and History, is entitled "She Belongs to 39 Clubs." There is an attractive picture of her speaking at the opening of the Georgia Exhibit in the Library of Congress. In the background of the picture are Dr. Luther Evans, Librarian of Congress, and Senator Walter F. George.

Laura (Dean) Thomas writes from her home in Oklahoma City: "Saw Bessie (Houser) Nunn last year. I would have known her in Egypt!"

1904

Wesleyan classmates and friends were saddened at the news of Scottie (Crowder) Benton's death which occurred at her home in Donalsonville on August 16. Scottie was a member of the Methodist Church, a past president of the Women's Club and a member of the Garden Club. Sympathy is extended to her husband, Mr. Otho Benton, their son, Mills Benton, and their four daughters, Mrs. T. W. White of Cairo, Mrs. Edgar Howard of Donalsonville, Misses Josephine and Nan Benton of Columbus.

1905

Annie (Barrs) Tomerlin's son, Joseph Granville Tomerlin, one of the leading lawyers of Oklahoma City, was married in August to Miss Warfield Van Hook. Annie's husband, who died about nine years ago, was at one time president of the Oklahoma Bar Association. She lives in Oklahoma City at 432 N.W. 21st St.

1906

Mozelle King of Midway, Ala. is adding each year to a scholarship in memory of Maria (Weaver) Burks, beloved former teacher at Wesleyan. She had the misfortune to fall during the summer and injured her back.

Lauretta (Cappel) Kiple writes: "When I came to Wesleyan I was known as 'the little Yankee,' having come from New York because of Mrs. Burks' interest in my coming to the college. Over the intervening years I have reared a family of five daughters and one son, whom we lost in this past war. The daughters are all happily married and I am the proud grandmother of six grandsons and three granddaughters. I often wonder about different friends made at Wesleyan, Julia Vaughn, Anna Gene McCalla and Mary Lou Tucker from Decatur. My husband and I lived in Babylon, N. Y. for 20 years, where we were active in the Methodist Church and I was first president of the W.S.C.S. and active in scout work. Now my husband is retired and we live rather quietly in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla."

The class of 1907 will be distressed to learn of the death of Erin (Schley) Brinson of Columbus in May. Word came to the alumnae office from her husband.

Julia (Heidt) Floyd has been appointed choir director at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Savannah. An attractive picture of Julia appeared in the Savannah Morning News with a story which said in part, "Mrs. Floyd is a recognized artist in Savannah music circles, capably serving as soloist, director and teacher. She has also done concert work. . . . During the war she was associate director of the city Y.M.C.A. USO."

Linda (Sullivan) Wood has presented an organ to the Methodist Church of Camp Hill, Ala., in memory of her husband, the late Dr. W. D. Wood, who practiced medicine in that community for 32 years. Dedication services were held at the church on August 29. A large congregation assembled and many beautiful flowers were sent for the occasion by friends of the beloved doctor. Tribute was paid not only to him, but to Linda who has devoted a lifetime toward the promotion of high musical standards in Camp Hill.

Nonie (Acree) Quillian recently enjoyed a visit to her son, William, and his family in Delaware, Ohio, while her husband was attending the World Wide Advance meetings in that state. William Jr. is on the faculty of Ohio Wesleyan College. Nonie and Dr. Quillian have moved from The Briarcliff in Atlanta to a new home at 1508 Clairmont Rd., N.E., about a mile beyond Emory. As president of the Atlanta Wesleyan Alumnae Club, she is beginning work with her Executive Board on plans for the coming year.

The sad news of the death of Miriam (Morehouse) Bowyer on April 3 in Savannah has come from her husband, Mr. H. L. Bowyer, and from her aunt, Martha (Morehouse) Bowen, '93. Sympathy is extended to them and to the children who survive: H. L. Bowyer, Jr., of Savannah; W. M. Bowyer of Cambridge University, Cambridge, England; Mrs. J. J. McManus of Atlanta.

Nora (Taylor) Houser had an interesting trip to Flint, Mich. this summer to make the acquaintance of her new granddaughter, the daughter of her daughter, Frances (Houser) Whisler.

News of the sudden death of Nancy Call (Bryan) Reese on August 26 will bring sadness to all of her Wesleyan classmates and friends. Nancy Call, the wife of Mr. F. C. Reese, Florida businessman, died of a heart attack at the home of a nephew and niece in Edgartown, Mass., where she was visiting. Sympathy is extended to her husband and their son, Frank Clyde Reese, Jr., a student at the University of Florida, and to her sisters, Bessie (Bryan) Donagan, '99, and Florrie (Bryan) Milton, '04.

Nancy was very popular during her student days at Wesleyan, being president of her class and active in campus activities. She was a member of a prominent Florida family, her father having served in both the Florida House of Representatives and the Senate and as a member of the first railroad commission established in Florida. For many years she was active in the Florida Historical Society, the Colonial Dames of America, and in Garden Club circles. She was a communicant of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Edyth (Marshall) Garrett wishes that she could see more news of her class, 1911, and sends the following news of her family to inspire her classmates to do likewise: Her husband is very busy as judge of the criminal court in Macon, and much of Edyth's time is taken up with her three grandchildren, children of her daughter, Gerry (Garrett) Jordan, A.B. '36. There are two boys, Charlie, 6, and Greg, 4, and a little girl, Gerry Janeau, seven months.

Frances (Chambers) Zeigler was named president of the Woman's Auxiliary to the National Laymen's Evangelical Association at the annual meeting at Toccoa in August.

Rebecca (Branham) Blackshear and her husband are beginning their 18th year at the Peekskill Presbyterian Church. Their three boys are now grown: Hamilton an interne at Bellevue Hospital in New York City; David teaching English in the Ewing Christian College, Allahabad, India (he will be there two years and then has three years in the seminary upon his return); and Robert, a college senior preparing to teach science, after four years in the Army Air Force. Rebecca herself began teaching on September 8, first grade in one of the schools of her city. She says it is great fun, and leaves her no time to live in the yesterdays!

Sympathy is extended to Mary Dudley (Fort) Colley whose son, Lieut. Allen Fort Colley was killed when the plane he was piloting crashed near Chatham Field at Savannah while he was on maneuvers with a unit of the Fifty-fourth Fighter Wing. A hero of World War II and graduate of Princeton University, the young officer was engaged to Georgia Ethridge, daughter of Willie (Snow) Ethridge, '20. He was a former deputy director of the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board of Georgia. Active in the work of the Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce, he directed the Georgia exhibits at the National Jaycees Convention in June. Survivors other than his mother include his father, Mr. Charles Stewart Colley; a sister, Mrs. Henrietta C. Joseph of Baton Rouge, La.; and a brother, Charles S. Colley, Jr., of Grantville.

Alberto (Denton) Marshall was awarded two scholarships to Emory University for summer study. She was featured as a composer on a program in July at the end of the session at the University and received favorable notices from the press for her piano scores for "A Prayer for Peace" and "Come Unto Me." She had played her compositions earlier at Emory in Oxford when she served as chairman of music for the Georgia Conference of Writers, a conference which resulted in the organization of the Georgia Writers Association. Alberto will be music chairman of this group for the next two years.

Clara (Warfield) Stamps is taking a well-earned vacation this year after 23 years of teaching, and is living at Neptune Beach, Fla.

Sympathy is extended to Margaret (Akerman) Menard in the death of her father, Judge Alexander Akerman of Orlando, Fla., who served ten years on the Federal Bench for the Southern District of Florida, retiring eight years ago on his 70th birthday. Judge Akerman's decisions against New Deal legislation made headlines during the early days of the Roosevelt Administration. A member of a family which for generations has been outstanding in Republican activities, he was the son of Amos T. Akerman who had been Attorney General in President Grant's Cabinet. The Supreme Court Judge was noted for his wit and philosophic comments from the bench. Once he went to the Scriptures to show that a newly wedded husband might loaf if he wished. A witness in an insurance case had testified that he had a bride but no job. The examining lawyer considered the circumstances unusual, but not so the judge. He read Deuteronomy XXIV, 5: "When a man hath taken a new wife he shall not go out to war, neither shall he be charged with any business; but he shall be free at home one year and shall cheer up his wife which he hath taken."

Birdie (Wood) Orr and her husband, Sam, had a wonderful trip during the summer going up to Canada and spending a week at Rockport, Mass., on Cape Ann, where they had the pleasure of meeting Margaret Fitzhugh Browne, the artist who painted the portrait of Martha Beall Brown, which hangs in the Candler Library.

1916

Hazel (Rogers) Barker and her husband, Colonel Ernest Barker, who recently retired after 30 years service in the United States Army are living in the old Rogers home at 877 Orange St., Macon, which Hazel has redecorated and furnished with interesting pieces which she has gathered from all over the world

1917

Kitty (Cater) Jones had a wonderful trip to the West last summer, accompanying her husband to Seattle, Wash., where he went to attend the meeting of the American Bar Association. Their son, C. Baxter Jones, Jr., an Atlanta lawyer, and his wife went, too, and they enjoyed together not only the hospitality of Seattle, which Kitty says is marvelous, but visited Lake Louise and Banff in Canada en route. On the way home they stopped in San Francisco, Los Angeles and in Alameda where Kitty saw her cousin, Jean (Kendrick) Vaughn, '87. They began to talk about Wesleyan and Mrs. Vaughn told them that Kitty's grandmother, Amerlia Elizabeth (Wimberly) Cater, was the first student ever to set foot on the Wesleyan campus. Her parents had made plans for her to enter Wesleyan when they first heard that the College was to be established and since they lived in Alabama, a great distance in stage coach and carriage days, they sent their daughter to Macon ahead of time allowing a few days for any delay which rainy weather might cause. The weather was ideal and the trip was effected with no lost time, consequently Kitty's grandmother was first in the first class of the first woman's college!

1918

Inez (Ellington) Greene's son, John Ellington Greene, graduated from Western Military Academy, Alton Ill., in June and had the thrill of receiving his diploma from General Wainwright. He is now a student at Washington and Lee. Inez' daughter, Mrs. James Decker, lives in Signal Hills, Belleville, Ill., and has three daughters, Kay, Jan and Jean.

Sympathy is extended to Sara Dosia (Bowden) Dobbins and Lucile Bowden, '24, in the death of their mother, Mrs. Paul Bowden of Thomson, in September after a long illness.

Anne (Martin) Holmes is teaching English at Miller High School in Macon.

Paula Snelling is one of eight Georgians to receive a fellowship award under the Julius Rosenwald Fund for study. She and Lillian E. Smith, both editors of the North Georgia Review, will conduct an extensive study of Southern literature, sociology and race relations at the University of North Carolina.

Velma Williams is now Mrs. J. W. Pritchett, 105 Woodmont Blvd., Nashville, Tenn.

Sympathy is extended to Grace (Laramore) Hightower in the death of her mother in the early fall.

A picture of Helen (Mullino) Newton's husband, Russell Newton, appeared in the October 4 issue of Life magazine, along with pictures of other leading American business in production in our country. The caption says of him: "Dan River Mills' Russell Newton, 49, worked in every department of a Georgia mill after he graduated from Georgia School of Technology."

Beulah (Smith) Jelks has two sons at Emory University, both taking pre-medical work. Howard, Jr., is a junior, and Allen, who was valedictorian of the graduating class of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., High School in June, is a freshman.

Earline (Wright) Lewis has moved from Sparta and now lives at Folly Beach, just 12 miles from Charleston, S. C. Her husband, Frank is an electrical inspector for the government and their three children are: Billy, age 22, a marine engineer with headquarters in Charleston; Frank, Jr., 19, in the Navy and currently stationed at San Diego, Cal.; Earline, 15, "who will graduate from Memminger High School in 1950 and expects to enter Wesleyan in September, 1950." By the way, this future Wesleyanne plays the piano and sings, but her first love is art.

In memory of their only son who was a casualty of World War II, Hattie Tracy (King) Hartness and her husband of Starkville, Miss., have taken into their home two young men from ravaged Europe and are sending them to Mississippi State College in their city. One of these, 18 years of age, is planning to be a doctor, and the other, 25, is learning American agricultural methods in order to put them into practice in his home country. Hattie Tracy says that they got the young men through the influence of William Suddeth, who directs "We the People" program over the radio, and who is himself from Starkville and a good friend of the Hartnesses. He is interested in helping Europeans to find homes and work in America, and Hattie Tracy and her husband had told him some time ago that they would take two boys. In October he telephoned them from New York, and arrangements were hurriedly made for "George" and "Alexander" to come by bus to Mississippi. Already they are a part of the Hartness household, and Hattie Tracy says have won their hearts.

Lora (Waterman) Burke and her husband had a wonderful trip to Atlantic City, N. J., in August, and from there they drove across the country to Madison, Wis., to see their son, Edward, and his wife, Julee (Struby) Burke, '47, whom they brought back to Macon. Edward has been studying for his Master's degree at the University of Wisconsin.

Janie Lee (Gardner) Ware is spending some time in Durham, N. C., where she welcomed her little granddaughter, Ann Ware Holt, on Sept. 19. Janie Lee's daughter and the baby's mother, Dr. Norma Ware Holt, is an intern at Duke Hospital in Durham, and the baby's father, Dr. Lawrence B. Holt, is a practicing physician in Winston-Salem, N. C., commuting between there and Durham.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mamie (Henslee) Lewis in the death of her lovely young daughter, Constance, on September 28. Constance was in her early twenties, a graduate of Hapeville High School and at the time of her death was Woman's Department Make-up Editor of The Atlanta Constitution. She was a member of Hapeville Methodist Church and active in the Fellowship Class. During the war she was hostess at the Atlanta USO. Mamie is a widow, and has one son, Sammy. Her mother, Mrs. N. N. Henslee, lives with her.

Kate (Lyons) Ainsworth and her husband, the son of Mary (Nicholson) Ainsworth, A.B. '91, have moved to Athens, Ga., where Malcolm is in charge of the Chamber of Commerce.

Eloise Bacon teaches English in the Doerun high school.

Classmates and other Wesleyan friends of Mildred (Scott) Dykes were grieved to learn of her death on August 13 in a Macon hospital following an illness of several months. Surviving Mildred are her husband, H. Ashlin Dykes, their daughter, Elizabeth Scott Dykes, '51, and a brother, Irving Scott, to all of whom sympathy is extended.

Aubrey (Jenkins) Garrard received her M.A. in Education from the University of Georgia in August and is teaching at Piedmont College.

Josephine Brandenburg writes that March from F.S.U. at the age of 21, and spent one year in the navy at that!

Since the death of Carolyn (Pierce) Dillard's husband, she has been working with the Red Cross and is now stationed in Tokyo as administrative assistant in charge of personnel in the Far Eastern Theatre of Operations on an 18 months' assignment. Her duties take her over many places of interest in that area. since the death of her mother last April she has been keeping the home going for her father at Gay, Ga., and serving as principal of a ten-teacher elementary school in Atlanta. Her school has an enrollment of 380 pupils.

Sarah (Culpepper) Cutts has one daughter, Caroline, who has three more years in high school but is already making plans to come to Wesleyan. Sarah writes from Greenville, where her husband is superintendent of schools: "Boots (McGehee) Allen came by to see me recently. Her husband had had a big promotion with the Seaboard Railroad and they are moving back to Atlanta after 17 years in Florida. She looks marvelous. You'd never believe she had a son who will be a sophomore at the University of Florida this fall."

Rose (Nottingham) Matthews had a delightful two-months trip out West this summer with her husband. Her older son, Custis Proctor, graduates next

And now comes a class note from Eunice Thomson herself, not from the Alumnae Director, — to all my classmates and college friends: something really important has happened to me. Although I've given up all hope of having "Mrs." on my tombstone and bringing up a half dozen little girls to send to Wesleyan, I've never given up a dream of being a home-owner, and last summer, having been to visit Group IV of the Atlanta Alumnae and seen Margaret Richards' lovely new home, and Martha Few's, and heard of Virginia McJenkins' (all of them also maiden ladies) I came back to Macon and renewed my efforts to find a very small and inconspicuous house in the general direction of Wesleyan, with a roof that didn't leak and a tree in the back yard—if possible. Lo and behold, I found it, and with a friend to go in with me (Mrs. Wesley S. Pool of Macon, a nurse, with whom I have shared an apartment for the past year), I have moved into 243 Hines Terrace! We are going to call it "The Parsonage," since in my mind "parsonage" and "house where I live" were synonymous when I was a child, and you are all hereby invited to come to see us any time! And since I'm shamelessly taking up most of the space in the magazine with news of me, I want to tell you also about my Sunday School class of 12-year-olds at Mulberry, in which I have Margaret (Cutter) Elder's little Margaret, Polly (Pierce) Corn's Charles (or "Chuck" as he prefers to be called), and Rosalie (Radford) Stillwell's Julia, as well as 20 other live wires. We're just now all excited over the prospect of coming out to Wesleyan one day during the fall holidays to have a picnic and swim in the pool!

Mary (Allman) Alford has moved to Ohio.

Sympathy is extended to Isabel Richter in the death of her brother in Ohio in October.

Martha Roberts, who teaches Spanish at Lanier High School for Boys in Macon, spent the summer studying in Mexico.

Margaret (Zattau) Roan visited the Wesleyan campus early in September, having accompanied Ann Holbrook of Atlanta to the Conservatory where she is a Speech student. Margaret, who has done considerable work in music therapy in veterans' hospitals, was recently mentioned on the front page of an Atlanta newspaper for her work with a mentally deranged patient who received national notice for a symphony which he had composed.

Frieda (Kaplan) Nadler's husband, Charles E. Nadler, professor of law at Mercer University, has completed a new book, "Nadler on Bankruptcy," which will be ready for national distribution December 15. The book, published by Callaghan and Co. of Chicago, will sell for $20 a copy. Nadler is a recognized authority on bankruptcy proceedings, having retired from the practice of law in 1946 after 30 years of legal practice in Cleveland, Ohio, where he had wide experience as a specialist in this field. He is an alumnus of Columbia Teachers College and Youngstown, Ohio College, and for three years taught at Marshall School of Law in Cleveland. In his introductory acknowledgement section, he expresses appreciation to his students at Mercer who assisted him in research, and to a number of legal authorities in Georgia and throughout the nation.

Sympathy is extended to Julia Adelaide (McClatchey) Cook whose father, Homer Reynolds McClatchey, died in Columbus after a long illness. Mr. McClatchey, retired district manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, was instrumental as president of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce in having the Army establish Fort Benning near Columbus. Survivors include Julia's mother, another daughter, Mrs. John C. Wilson of Hartford, Conn., a son, Homer R. McClatchey, Jr., of Atlanta, and a sister, Mrs. S. V. Sanford of Athens, widow of the late chancellor of the University of Georgia.

Minnie Lee (Rankin) Dykes is teaching music in Millen where her husband is superintendent of schools.

Eva (Brewer) Taylor's oldest son is a senior at Emory. She has a younger son and a daughter. Eva is District Promotion Secretary of the WSCS in the Valdosta District.

1928

Sympathy is extended to Betty (Bragg) Sturdivant and her sisters, Emme (Bragg) Middlebrooks, '35, and Lottie (Bragg) Clarke, '31, in the death of their father, Mr. Ellis Augustus Bragg, well known planter of Gray. Mr. Bragg was vacationing at St. Simons Island when his death occurred on August 4.

Sympathy is extended to Elizabeth (Carter) Overby and her husband, Eugene, in the death of his father, the Rev. E. M. Overby, pastor of the Wrightsville Methodist Church, which occurred at the parsonage on August 6. He entered the Methodist ministry in 1898 and had served pastorates in South and Middle Georgia and had been district superintendent of the Thomasville and Americus districts. He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Jessie Davenport of Americus, another son, E. Marvin Overby, Jr., of Savannah, four brothers and three sisters.

Sara (Fincher) Davis' husband is in the hardware business in Doerun. They have three handsome sons.

Margaret Chapman, attending a conference of Girl Scout leaders in Washington, D. C., enjoyed an evening with Ling Nyi (Vee) Wong and her husband.

John Noyes for Louise's grandfather, the late Prof. William John Noyes, an honor graduate of Dartmouth College, who taught in the Macon high schools for nearly 20 years.

Sympathy is extended to Genevieve (Vasset) Sannie in the death of her father. Genevieve lives in Paris, France at 48 Avenue, de Neuilly, Seine.

Marjorie Watson teaches Spanish and English at the Greenville Senior High School in Greenville, S. C.

Blanche (Wannamaker) Watts writes: "Marjorie Watson has been doing graduate work at Duke. Blanche (Duvall) Smith is now working in the Placement Department at Duke; Roberta (Cason) Cox has recently been ill in an Atlanta hospital. My family is growing up. I have two sons, one 12 and one 5; and one daughter 9 years old. She asks me many questions these days about Wesleyan."

1933

Frances (Justi) Best brought her children, Frances and Sally, to the Wesleyan campus for a brief visit last summer and says that they are now looking forward to their longer visit of four years when the proper time comes. Frances writes: "Alley (Pendergrast) Cook's husband came by our parsonage for a few minutes last week. They are now in Lynchburg, Va., and have a seven-year-old daughter, Nancy. It's nice to know that they are not so far away from our home here in LaCrosse, Va."

1934

Anita (Beall) Tudor has a son, George Alexander, born in Macon on October 6.

Louise (Johnson) Burks has moved from Chapel Hill to Charlotte, N. C., where her husband is Professor of Modern Languages at Queens College. He received his Ph.D. degree in romance languages at the University of North Carolina in June and taught advanced classes in Spanish literature there during the summer. Louise resigned her job as secretary-librarian in the Botany department there and writes that at present she is "merely keeping house and furnishing our apartment here in Charlotte."

Sympathy is extended to Evelyn (Sewell) Rineer whose baby, born September 25, only lived one day. He had been named Robert Sewell Rineer.

Charmian (Stuart) Thomson has a daughter, Melinda Stuart, born May 4 in Omaha, Neb., where her husband is a newspaperman. Charmian writes: "I could rave for pages about her. Perhaps you always enjoy a second child more than a first one, and she is a wonderfully good baby. Bobby is nine years old, and a cub scout. I can hardly believe that Marvin and I will celebrate our 14th anniversary tomorrow, and it has been 16 years since I left Wesleyan!"

Charlotte (Tyus) Dekle writes from her home in Millen of a pleasant visit she had recently from Mary Jean (Chapman) Paris and her pretty little daughter who spent the day with her.

Word has just reached the Alumnae Office of the death of Carolyn (Barfield) Smith of Donalsonville on July 7 after a very short illness. The message came from another Wesleyanne, Myrtle (Bush) Roberts, '19, who lives in the same town. She writes: "Carolyn was 34 years of age. She leaves, besides her husband, one daughter, Jo, eleven years old. Eight years ago she lost her mother on July 4 and her father on July 6. I played at her funeral, using her favorite Chopin Nocturne Op. 9, No. 2. I am organist at the Presbyterian Church, and Carolyn was my assistant. She was a beautiful housekeeper and had a host of friends."

1935

When Avis (Moate) Brown and her little daughter, Avis Moate, visited her sister, Kathryn (Moate) Heard in Macon in September, Kathryn gave a large tea for her and for their mother, Mrs. J. M. Moate of Devereux, who was also visiting her.

When Ruth (Renfroe) Williams and her architect husband recently moved in Atlanta from the Ponce de Leon Apartments to 210 North Colonial Home Circle, N.W., they announced their change of address in a novel manner. All of their friends received green and white folders picturing a couple in a horse-drawn cart loaded with their belongings and a sign: "We've moved." Inside the folder were two mail boxes, one faded and worn and stamped with the old address, the other quite new with the latest address. Incidentally, Ruth's husband, Gene, was the architect for the new apartments.

Sympathy is extended to Gertrude Smith in the death of her father, Mr. George B. Smith, well known Macon businessman, who died unexpectedly at his home on Sept. 19. Mr. Smith was the son of the late Bridges Smith, former mayor of Macon, and Katrina Goeltz Smith, both prominent in the history of Macon. At the time of his death, Mr. Smith was president of Macon Electric Company. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

The members of the Class of '36 will be interested to learn that their class mascot, Kathleen Pape, was married in September (see "Weddings"). Kathleen, like her mother before her, Kathleen (Rogers) Pape, '19, studied piano under Professor Maerz and is the first member of a "second generation" to become a pupil of the famous and beloved teacher. She completed her first year at the Conservatory in June, having won a competitive scholarship in piano before entering.

Alice (Cook) Park, who had been teaching in Palmetto, Fla., has returned to professional Girl Scout work as executive director in Tampa, Fla.

Laura Ashley (Harris) Evans lives in Sandersville where her husband practices law. They have a little year-old daughter, Marianne Harris, named for Laura Ashley's sister, Marianne Harris, '35. "It is so nice to live here near my mother, Minnie (Blitch) Harris, who is a Wesleyan Alumna, '96, and a Phi Mu."

Rosa (Johnston) Law and her two attractive daughters, Fran and Cissy, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Johnston, in Macon last summer. Rosa is now living in Washington, D. C., where her husband, Commander Law is currently stationed.

Helen (Pafford) Bukowick was delighted to have Jeannette Deaver, '38, for a visit at her home in Westfield, Mass., last summer when Jeannette was director of the Girl Scout Camp Bonnie Brae in the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts. Helen's younger son, Peter, aged five, started to kindergarten last month and the older son, Bucky, nine, is in the Fourth Grade.

Rose (Pendergrass) Hillyer's little son, Dee, started to kindergarten in Plainfield, N. J. this fall. Rose writes that Mary Yancey Pittard is taking some courses in child welfare at Columbia.

Katherine (Kilpatrick) Lamar's attractive new home on Vista Circle in Macon was photographed in late summer for the Macon Telegraph. One picture showed Katherine seated in the spacious living room; another shows her young daughters, Kay and Louise, in the gaily papered breakfast room, and the third photograph is of the exterior of the rambling two-story white house. Katherine's son, Henry, Jr., wasn't home when the pictures were made.

Frances (Townsend) Skinner writes: "I get hungry for the sight of Wesleyan when each Alumnae magazine comes—the campus must be very beautiful with the 11 years additional growth on trees and boxwood since I was there." Frances and her husband, the Rev. Sherman Skinner, minister of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, Pa., and their two sons live a very busy life, but Frances says she loves the activity, even the large teas and receptions which are part of the life of a minister's wife.

Harriet (Wright) Sutton's husband,

Dr. Mack Sutton, baby specialist, has opened an office in Albany, Ga. He received his degree at Tulane University and interned at the Charity Hospital in New Orleans, served four years with the Eighth Army Air Force, and was for 30 months in the European theater.

Hazel (Birch) Harrison has three adorable little children, Jean, Dale, and a son, William Henry Harrison, Jr., who arrived on October 4. Hazel finds time to work actively in the Macon Writers Club of which she is treasurer.

Jeannette Deaver is both student and teacher at present. She hopes to complete the requirements for the Master's Degree at Wayne University in Detroit, Mich., by next June and has been asked to teach an Education course there, a five-weeks orientation program in teaching. The subject has to do with how children act in groups and with some techniques of group leadership. She writes:

"Frances (Houser) Whisler has moved from Flint, Mich., to Montana and I hear that her husband has a position as professor of psychology at a college in that state. Dorothy (Du Puis) Mackin and her husband, an excellent pianist, live in Washington, D. C., where he performs at hotels and clubs and hopes to play for television. Their child, Donnelle, was born last January."

Susan Magette wrote in October that she was going back into the U. S. Navy, as lieutenant in the Supply Corps. She was chosen as one of 288 from around 1500 applicants from WAVES on active and inactive duty.

Ruth (Menges) Struble's third son, Roger Neil, was born August 13. She says that makes the third person in her family of five to be born on Friday the thirteenth! Ruth's address is now 3813 Stratford Rd., Sussex, Hampton, Va.

Verna Chitty is dietician and assistant director of the lunchrooms in the Jacksonville, Fla., public schools.

Edna (Garrett) Cook writes from her home in Edison, Ga.: "Robert and I have three little Cooks: Joy, a second-grader, Karen, almost four; and 18-month-old Bob. I am making a stab of being P.-T.A. president this year and I see Edwina (Arthur) Brooks almost every day. She has a beautiful new daughter whom she and Ennis named Julie, and little Kay, who has lovely brown eyes like Edwina, thinks there is no one like her little sister. Incidentally, I'd love to hear from some of my classmates."

Mary Leila (Gardner) Oliver is living at 703 University Park, Rochester 7, N. Y. Her husband, Karl, is teaching piano at the Eastman School of Music.

Margaret (Edge) Batts and her husband and young son have a lovely new home in Doerun.

Edith (Hillman) Gerhardt's son, born July 23, was named Robert Hillman Gerhardt for Edith's father.

Marybeth (Jones) Leach is now living in Lynchburg, Va., 2809 Rivermont Ave. She and her husband moved there from Atlanta when he was made assistant to the vice-president of the Consolidated Textile Corporation last summer.

Louise (Wadsworth) Jeffcoat writes from St. Petersburg, Fla.: "Thanks again for the inspiring commencement program. It was wonderful being back at Wesleyan, even though it did make me feel ancient to have two of my former students, Betty Willis and Jane Clapp, in the graduating class. For a class that out-sang all other classes, '39 has certainly been short on class notes. I hope that these few will lengthen that one-half inch of space our notes usually take up.

"Bascom (Knight) Zewadski lives here in St. Petersburg. Her husband is a lawyer and they have a four-year-old son, Billy. She tells me that Louisa (Willingham) Williams and her husband who is a doctor, and their two daughters live in Milledgeville. Also that she occasionally sees Jane (Martin) Groover, Sally (Smith) Butt and Mary (Sharpe) Robinson ("Stupe") in Orlando. She and I were delighted to hear that Marguerite (Stallings) McLeod has a son and is living in Atlanta.

"This summer when I was in Atlanta Lillian (Carpenter) McNair and I had lunch with Carolyn (Malone) Carpenter. Both Lil, who lives in Columbia, S. C., and Carolyn have three daughters. Carolyn is quite active in Atlanta club work, according to the Atlanta Journal which keeps me posted on Carolyn's varied activities.

"Frances (Campbell) Hughes, who attended commencement with me, sings regularly on radio shows and in concerts. She has a little daughter, who has just started school, and a small son. Elizabeth (Sanders) Kemp lives in Atlanta and has a two-year-old son, Brantley. As for me, I thought surely I would have a daughter to send to Wesleyan to get all the tennis and basketball shots I missed and to see if she could write an acceptable plot for 'Dr. Gin,' but instead I have an eight-months-old red-headed boy whose only goal in life seems to be knocking over cups of milk. If there are any Alumnae living in St. Petersburg or near here, I wish they would get in touch with me. My address is 4744 Fifth Avenue N."

Marjorie (Potts) Durden writes: "The bulletin, 'Wesleyan Holiday,' came yesterday. The faculty certainly seems wide awake — reading about all the new courses offered and all the new equipment makes me wish I were starting all over again as a freshman!

"My husband is assistant resident in surgery at Grady Hospital. Our eight-months-old son, John III, has now reached the climbing stage and has already caused me a number of gray hairs.

"Beth (Belser) Sanders has moved to Houston, Texas, where her husband has a very responsible position in a new department store. Beth writes most enthusiastically about the place and the people. I saw Gene (Laurens) Clark and her adorable young son when they were visiting in Monroe. Recently I met up with Mary (Cummins) Armstrong and saw her little three-year-old boy for the first time—he has Mary's engaging grin. I called on Evelyn (Dame) Bell in connection with the Second Century Fund—she is the only one I've seen who has a future Wesleyanne—her little girl is beautiful.

"Miriam (Rudesal) Smith, '42, is the mother of a little son. Her husband is a resident physician at Grady Hospital."

Jane (Huckabee) Miller and her husband are building a new home several miles out from Albany, Ga. They have two children, a son in public school this year, "Vic," and a two-year-old daughter, Marjorie. Jane's mother had the misfortune to fall while on a trip to Philadelphia and injured her back in October. She is now at home and recuperating, but will be for some time in a cast.

Mary Frances Bell sent in her gift for the Phi Delta Phi Scholarship with this note: "The company I work for gave me a grand trip to Ohio, Texas, and Louisiana in June, and on the way back I stopped off for a visit to my family in Georgia, and spent part of my vacation at Virginia Beach with relatives." Mary Frances is living at 19 Pringry Place, Elizabeth, N. J.

Alice (Burrowes) Ritter has a little daughter who was born on August 1 and whose name, Kathryn Astrid, was very promptly shortened to Kathy. Alice (Mrs. Frederick W.) lives in Hicksville, Long Island at the charming address, 14 Violet Lane, Island Trees.

Loulie (Hodges) Kernaghan recently transformed the garage at her home in Macon into an extra room, a combination bedroom and den, which she has furnished with both modern and antique furniture. An attractive picture of Loulie and her two children, Gena, aged eight, and five-year-old Eugene III, grouped in the new room, was printed in the Macon Telegraph.

Priscilla Lobeck, who is still on the art faculty at Agnes Scott College, wrote in September: "This past summer was unusual in my life, and I want to tell you about it. I bicycled through Europe, a ten-weeks trip through the low countries, Switzerland, France, and England. Paris had always been a dreamed-of destination and I finally put to good use my Wesleyan French major. I was in Paris on Bastille Day, saw the opening of the Olympics in London, and the Shakespeare Festival in Stratford-on-Avon. Was duly impressed by the Mona Lisa at the Louvre and Rembrandt's Night Watch at the Ryksmuseum in Amsterdam. In this city also there was a most thrilling comprehensive Van Gogh exhibit. After riding for forty or sixty miles a day we would rush off to the cathedral or museum or chateau that had attracted us to the certain city. Amiens, Ruen (in ruins), Chartres, Notre Dame de Paris—and I never grew tired of the stained glass windows. Luxembourg City is a fantastic place built on cliffs; Switzerland is like a brand new Christmas toy and unbelievably beautiful; Holland is charmingly simple, fresh and colorful. We stayed in hotels; one was an old mill at Winchester; in Antwerp, a concentration camp; in Loosduinen a former home of a circus rider. In this way we came in contact more closely with people of the various countries. At night we would sit around the table over a cup of tea and talk over the world's problems. Instead of taking a camera, I carried along india ink and a stack of sketching paper. Although I had only five minutes at a time for sketching, later I shall paint from these notes."

Lee (Rees) Buttram's little daughter, Carolyn Lee, was born on August 12 in Chattanooga, Tenn., where Lee and her husband, Dr. W. R. Buttram are living. Their address is 1304 Hixson Pike.

Ruth Hill Reid's only brother was elected Mayor Protem of Rochelle, Ga., last December and Ruth, City Clerk and Treasurer, and she says they have taken a good deal of ribbing about having two members of the family in office! She was also made president of the American Legion Auxiliary of the Third District, a job which took so much of her time that she had to resign as assistant county tax collector. Ruth was a counsellor of Girls State held at Wesleyan in July, and she and Malene (Lee) Morgan are on the board for next year's Girls State. Recently in Atlanta she was the first person to be interviewed on the Peach-tree on Parade program on television, Carolyn (Malone) Carpenter being on the same program.

Rita (Santry) McGill and her husband have moved from Atlanta to Tulsa, Okla., where he is sales engineer for Perrault Brothers. Their daughter, Robyn, was a year old in July and Rita writes: "In the way of her age, she is keeping me very busy. Recently when we accompanied my husband to California on a business trip we visited Ande (Davis) Botarff at her home in San Mateo. Her little daughter, Susan Ande (shortened to Sande) is five month old and a very good baby. Did you know that Jane (Robertson) Wilson has a little daughter, Joan, just a year old? Jane's husband is in the last year of residence at Grady Hospital and they have an attractive apartment in Atlanta."

Emily (Whittaker) Vickers writes from Osaka, Japan, where she has been for the past 15 months, of the birth of her second daughter, Camille Shelton, on May 25. Emily's husband is stationed in Osaka with the military government; three-year-old Marilyn, is the fourth member of their family. "I have met two other Wesleyannes since coming to Japan," Emily says. "Theodora (Atkinson) Cobb, '14, was our neighbor until she and her husband recently moved to Kobe to resume work with an English language night school. I am looking forward to visiting them in their new home. Kitty (Lester) Decker, '43, I met at the hospital when our baby was born—her new son, Charles, Jr., was born on June 3. It was a great pleasure to meet someone from Georgia. I hear that Anne (Devereaux) Potts, '43, and her husband are building a home in Williamsburg, Va. Their daughter, Edith, was two in February."

Louie Frances Woodward graduated from the University of Georgia School of Medicine on March 22 and is now interning for one year at the University Hospital in Augusta. She writes: "It seems such a long time since I took that medical aptitude exam at Wesleyan, seven years ago. I see many Wesleyan friends here. Mary Jo (Peterson) McDermaid, '44, is here with her husband who is a sophomore. The head of our dental clinic is the husband of Virginia (Harvey) Johnston, '44. Frances (Gaines) Hogan, '39, graduated here last year and she and her husband, who was in my class, are in Fresno, Cal., where he is an interne at the Fresno County General Hospital. They have a darling little girl. Frances (Barnes) Grant and Sadye Claire (Barnes) Ray, '44, were here a few days ago while their mother, Mrs. T. J. Barnes, was a patient here. I enjoyed seeing them."

"Recently I was in Atlanta and saw Florence Beasley and Ruth Corry who is a librarian at the Evening School. She told me of the wonderful trip which Priscilla Lobeck took to Europe in the summer. Louise Davis, '43, and Maidie Davis also went abroad on a youth caravan. Eugenia Davis Ash, '41, has a son who was born in August—her two daughters, Georgia and Weezie, are precious, too!"

Miriam Hawk received her Bachelor of Arts degree in library science from Emory University in June and is now assistant librarian at the Willow Branch Library in Jacksonville, Fla. She writes: "I am very much interested in the Second Century Fund and hope that it is progressing. Anne (Carlton) Blanchard contacted me before I left Emory about the Fund. The Atlanta Wesleyan Club is certainly a fine organization. Ruth Corry, '42, has been elected treasurer of the junior members of the American Library Association's Round Table, Atlanta Chapter."

Susan (Monk) Romaine has been living in Arlington, Va., 3816 N. Fairfax Drive, since her marriage to William R. Romaine on June 8. She writes: "I must tell you that Bill and I, though Presbyterians, met at a Methodist Church. Some day I'll bring Bill to see where I spent two very happy years—and why I still go to Methodist Churches on occasion."

Jean Overstreet is enrolled in the Nashville School of Social Work as a graduate student, and is living in the Graduate Dormitory at Peabody.

Mary (Sandefur) Brownlow has a little son, Bruce Lee, who was born July 12.

Helen (Farmer) Popejoy enjoyed a late summer visit with Kate (Johnson) Palumbo while in New York. Kate's husband is a model photographer, and they live in a lovely combination studio and apartment on West 55th Street in New York. Kate is still doing a little modeling, and there was a lovely picture of her in the Herald Tribune the day Helen left for Macon. Kate says that she often sees Betty Anderson, '42, who is also a Powers model in New York.

Jo Banks McKay, who has a secretarial position in New York, went on a bicycle trip on Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard, Mass., last summer.

Dorothy Ann (Pim) Roth is living in Arlington, Va., not far from her aunt, Lucy (Cunys) Mulcahy, '24. She writes of going to an Alumnae meeting and of how wonderful it seemed to be with a group of Wesleyannes once more. "I took Betty Hearn, '45, who works for the State Department in Washington, with me. Have seen Dorothy Herndon, '45, several times—she and I went to see Rosa (Comolli) Savage, '42, and her little five-day-old son. She and her husband will move to the West sometime in November."

"I had a wonderful trip to Atlanta last summer where Dad is pastor of the Park Street Methodist Church. Mother took care of my two small daughters, Ann, four, and Jean, one, while I spent a week with Suzanne (Davis) Hardee, at her apartment on Fernandina Beach in Florida. She and her husband have a darling little girl, Kathy. I'll always be grateful to Wesleyan for giving me a friend like Suzanne. Of course I saw Kathleen Davis and Mary Agnes Wolff. Back in Atlanta Elinor (Rees) Veatch, Frances (Sanders) Richter, Helen Partin, Martha Hanson, and my sister, Jean (Pim) Kinsman came to our home for a get together and what fun we had chatting. Marianne (Arnold) Sapp has twin daughters—it was grand seeing her for we have had such fun together since high school days in Elberton."

An attractive photograph of Ruth (Powell) Glass bending over her adorable baby in his cradle was used to illustrate an article about antique cradles in a recent issue of the Macon Telegraph. The baby, born July 19, has been named Thomas Powell Glass for Ruth's late father, Col. Thomas Nimmons Powell of Newnan, is the 19th infant in his mother's family who has been rocked in the 75-year-old cradle.

Sara (Wright) Stowe has a daughter, Sally, born May 24, who is already planning to enter Wesleyan in the class of 1970.

Dimple Brison's vacation took her to Chicago, where she visited her family, and to Newton, Kan., to see Peggy Beeson, '48.

Lucile Carter dropped by the Alumnae Office during the late summer with Helen (Farmer) Popejoy whom she was visiting. Lucile for the past year has been director of music at a church in Valdosta, and she gave us news of a number of girls of the class of '45.

Mildred Collins has a grand new job as National Radio Consultant for the Junior League.

Jean (Cone) Snooks has a son born July 3. Jean lives in Ailey.

Joyce (Daniel) Mann's little son was born on August 22 in Albany and has been named David Harrold for his father, Dr. David S. Mann, and his father's only brother. Dr. Mann is the son of the Rev. D. G. Mann, who is superintendent of the Macon district, Methodist Church.

Ann (Fincannon) Smith since her marriage lives in Quincy, Fla.

Margie (Fiske) Stewart lives in Augusta now where she is teaching music to private pupils.

Laurel Dean (Gray) Craft is teaching second grade at the Inman School in Atlanta while her husband, Fisher Craft, Jr., continues working toward his Ph.D. degree at Emory University. They have an apartment at Emory and Laurel Dean says that she meets up with other Wesleyannes every time she goes out shopping in the neighborhood. They come down to Macon for an occasional weekend with Laurel's mother. Mrs. Lawrence Gray, hostess at Wesleyan College.

Clyde (Green) Martin is in Houston, Texas, with her husband who is a medical student at Baylor University.

Mayre (Hall) Crutchfield lives now in Key West where her husband is stationed at the Submarine Base.

Rosa Moore Macauley is working in Augusta, and Maude Whaley Williamson lives in Atlanta where she is working for an insurance company.

Katherine (Page) Garfield who now lives in Greensboro, Ga., has a son born in the early summer.

Margaret (Tillman) Booth is spending the winter in New York where her husband, Phil, who graduated from Dartmouth College last June, is doing graduate work at Columbia.

Evelyn (Horn) Wooten has a son, William B. Wooten III, born in California where her husband is at the University of California.

1946

Lucy Broyles, '46, has an assistantship in journalism at Emory University. Lucy went to Canada during the summer with her parents, the Rev. Richard Broyles and Mary Ruth (Jones) Broyles, '19.

Marion Chapman, who has been teaching piano in Hawkinsville for the past two years, is doing graduate study in piano at the American Conservatory in Chicago this winter. She also spent six weeks there last summer.

Ted (Dillard) Ethridge (see "Weddings") received a degree from the University of Georgia Law School in August, the only girl in her class.

Peggy (Halliburton) Williams has an adorable year-old son, named for her father, Spotswood Halliburton, but called "Hal." Her husband, Ralph, is in the wholesale lumber business and they live in the pleasant town of Warrenton, N. C. quite near such places as Chapel Hill and Durham and especially convenient during the football season! They are building a home on a three-acre lot, which is wooded and has a stream, but the past year they lived in a gorgeous old home, Eaton House, which was lent them by friends. Although Peggy enjoyed every minute in her lovely white-columned and box-planted surroundings, she confesses that her new home is modern in design.

Jean Jarvis edits a weekly newspaper in Leesburg, Fla.

Lina (Jones) Arnold writes from Hawkinsville, where her husband is practicing medicine. "I have often wondered how it would be to live in a place smaller than Macon, but I never dreamed we would like it so well.

"Catherine (Pate) Goode has a new daughter, Peggy, born September 29.

"Beverly (Burgess) Hicks has a son, Walter Lynn, Jr., born in August. They are living in Augusta while Lynn is in medical school.

"I hear from Anne (Hoyt) Jolley sometime. Her husband, Fleming, is stationed in a navy hospital in Winston-Salem, N. C. They live near Echo (Paterson) Spoon and her husband.

"Mary Louise Davis went to summer school at the University of North Carolina, I hear."

Virginia (Larsen) Tinker writes that her husband has started his junior year at Tech, and she is back at Sylvan Hills School in Atlanta, teaching a kindergarten with 72 children, her class numbering 37. She also gives music classes in the two first, second, and sixth grades. Recently she met Jane McCowen, A.B. '48, in the choir at St. Philip's Cathedral. They recognized each other as Wesleyannes by their class rings, and had a nice chat about their Alma Mater.

Shellie Lasseter is serving as president of the Mademoiselles, social club of attractive young Macon women.

Edith (Lovejoy) Edwards lives in Due West, S. C., where her husband is attending Erskine College and Edith has a secretarial position in the college. She writes that Miss Louise Rivers, formerly of the Wesleyan English faculty, is teaching there, and they enjoy exchanging news of their Wesleyan friends. Edith's son, David Edwards III, is a year and a half old, and has red curly hair and a vocabulary of two words, "kitty" and "duck."

Patricia (Markey) Shell is now living in Elizabethton, Tenn., Alexander Apartments, Apt. E., 122 South Watauga Ave.

Carolyn (Mathews) Miller's son, who was born Sept. 29, has been named Boyce Miller III.

Mary Ann Roach is teaching math at Washington Seminary in Atlanta and living at the school.

Joan (Tomlinson) Horton's husband, Thad, whose voice is known to countless sports fans, is directing the televised sports programs for his station WSB in Atlanta. After the war, Thad did graduate study in radio at Syracuse University and was production manager of WFBL, radio station in that city. Joan roomed with Thad's sister, Tracy Horton, at Wesleyan. Thad is the son of Louise (King) Horton, '18.

Sara (Bacon) Hammond's husband teaches in the Doerun high school.

Miriam (Angell) Macomber is traveling through the Carolinas and the Virginias with her husband, but says her home is still St. Petersburg, Fla.

Virginia (Bell) Parker is living in Mayo, Fla. Her husband, a director of physical education, received his M. A.

degree from the University of Florida last June.

Barbara Binns studied at the University of Georgia last summer.

Sally Bowen writes that she has found great satisfaction in the teaching profession as a beginner and is teaching Second Grade again this year in Newnan, Ga. In addition she is adult adviser of the young people at the Presbyterian Church and directs a Girl Scout Troop of 12-year-olds. "I miss Wesleyan more than it is possible for me to convey in words," she declares.

Emily (Britton) Parker taught at Ray City, Ga., last year. Her husband, Pledger Parker, is studying at Emory University and Emily writes that she hopes to be able to teach again this fall.

Anne (Carlton) Blanchard is teaching math in the Snellville High School—her husband, the Rev. R. E. Blanchard, is pastor of the Snellville Methodist Church and a ministerial student at Emory University.

Lillian Cazin is Home Economics teacher at Springhead Junior High School in Plant City, Fla. During the past year she attended classes in Education at Florida Southern College in Lakeland.

Margie Cook is a graduate chemistry student at Tulane University where she holds an assistantship.

Beverly (Bebe) Daniel writes from Hollywood, Cal.: "Nina Bishop, Betty Henderson, '48, and I drove out to California in June for a vacation, but here it is September and Nina and I are still here. Betty returned to Georgia as she was under contract to teach the third grade at Thomasville, but Nina is working out here as a receptionist in Guest Relations at Mutual Broadcasting and I have the same type work with Columbia Broadcasting. We like our work very much—the stars are in and out of the studios—most enchanting; Rena Shaffer was out here until August, but is back in West Point working as a doctor's assistant. She has written a song which is in the process of being published and as soon as the record ban is off, she should start receiving royalties. Sep Porcher is in Atlanta with the American Telephone and Telegraph as she has been for the past year."

Peggy (Derby) Champlin (see "Weddings"), lives at 601 West 110th Street, Apt. 7-L-3, New York City. Her husband, a Yale graduate, works on Life magazine.

Marguerite (Gibbs) Demmond writes that she has named her little daughter, born June 26, Mary Marguerite, "a name I hope to see on a Wesleyan diploma about 20 years from now!" Marguerite and her husband are living in Savannah—last fall she taught classes in music and French at Chatham Junior High School there.

Frances Harris, who has been working on the Marietta Daily Journal, went to Cuba for a visit the first week in September.

Martha Haynes has been appointed a probation officer for Polk County, Fla.

Eva (Heath) Sullins and her husband, Hubert Walker Sullins ("Sully") are living near Birmingham where he is associated with the Texas Company. Their address is Box 381, Trussville, Ala. Their marriage on June 12 was a brilliant affair, taking place at Mulberry Street Methodist Church in Macon, where Eva had formerly lived, followed by a reception at the beautiful home of her grandmother, Mrs. C. B. Adams, and her aunt, Marie (Adams) Timmerman, '11. Eva's mother, Cornelia (Adams) Heath, '13, and father, H. Persons Heath, came from their home in Washington, D. C., her father giving her away of course. A large number of parties preceded the wedding.

Juliet (Lynch) Goode was married to John T. Goode III on July 3. She spent last year in New York at the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Careers, from which she graduated in June. Now while her husband is studying dentistry at the Medical College in Richmond, Va., Juliet is working as assistant buyer at Thalmers, a large department store in Richmond.

Elizabeth (Lundy) Sterchi and her husband, the Rev. Gordon Andrew Sterchi, are living in Gilbert Hall at Emory University where he is a student at the Candler School of Theology. They have been there since returning from their honeymoon trip to New York after their wedding on June 25. Elizabeth's husband and his brother operate a restaurant and Elizabeth is confidential secretary to the Director of Public Welfare in Georgia. She writes: "Since settling in Atlanta I have had pleasant associations with Elinor (Rees) Veatch, Mary Frances Webb, Jane (Methvin) Jones, Dorothy (Wilkin) Respass, Martha Harrison, Mary (Giglia) Johnson, Gloria Barker, Peggy Ann Pangborn, Margie (Soulie) Chandler and Anne Carlton Blanchard, the last two living on the same floor in this apartment as I do. None of us have contact with a club, so are planning a get together soon."

Jane Anne (Mallet) Settle is teaching at Washington Seminary in Atlanta. She received her M.A. degree from Emory in August and her husband, John, was awarded the B.B.A. degree at the same time.

Doris Marsh is a social worker with the Florida State Welfare Board, serving in Dade City, Fla.

Helen (Mathews) Harding (see "Weddings") spent last year teaching in Cuba at the Guantanamo Naval Base where she met her future husband, one of the officers stationed there. At present she is traveling with him, having spent several weeks in Philadelphia and Boston, and from there going back to Guantanamo City for five weeks.

Betty Morgan is taking a pre-medical course at Tulane University. Her address is 7033 Freret St., New Orleans, La.

Frances (Oehmig) Collins writes: "Since my husband is traveling the State of Georgia for the Directory division of the Telephone Company and I go with him, I run into Wesleyan girls everywhere we go. It's such fun to see my friends and "rehash" Wesleyan days. It seems that nearly all of my group have changed their names: 'Tish' Eason is to marry soon. Lib (Lundy) Sterchi is living at Emory where Gordon is in the theology school—she, Anne (Carlton) Blanchard, and Margie (Soulie) Chandler, '46 all live on the same floor. I saw Peggy Ann Pangborn in Savannah. While I was there I saw Katherine Shepherd many times—she is teaching school in Savannah. I was distressed to learn of her father's death a couple of weeks before graduation. Ann Hoyle is also teaching.

"Jean (Parkins) Heard is doing testing work at Mercer. In Atlanta I saw Martha (Bradford) Swann and Jerry (Farrar) Thomas, who live just a few doors apart in the new Callaway Apartments for Tech students. Jean (Wheat) Dykes has a little daughter who was born August 24. Mildred (Scott) McGoldrick has a little daughter, also. Mary White is to be married this fall, but you will probably hear of this later. Jane (Wilson) Russell and Ben have been living in Rome, but will move to Macon as soon as they can find a place to stay. I saw Betty Turner who was with her family at Sea Island when we were down that way."

Marjorie (Perry) Sandifer is teaching the first grade at Pearl Stephens School in Macon again this winter. She considers teaching a wonderful profession, she says, and the first grade the ideal class to teach.

Edna Roach had a wonderful tour of the West last summer which included the Grand Canyon and many other points of interest.

Rena Shaefer is spending several months at her home in West Point, but plans to return to California where she worked for Columbia Broadcasting Company for 15 months. "While I was out there I was surprised to see Evelyn Bernstein walk into the office—we had fun talking about Wesleyan. Incidentally I want to say how much it meant to me to receive the Alumnae magazines and other communications from Wesleyan while I was so far from home."

Helen (Thompson) Tucker and her husband, David are living in Athens where he is a student at the University of Georgia, but they plan to live in Florida after his graduation next March. She taught English in the upper grades of the school at Lexington last year.

Janice Walker had a wonderful summer traveling through nine European countries. She now has her own small studio in Athens, Tenn., and says she often sees Merle Sosna in Knoxville, and they swap Wesleyan news. "Merle," says Janice, is the successful young lady. I really think Miller's advertising department would collapse without her."

Martha Worsham taught first grade at Fort Hawkins School in Macon last year and attended the Mercer Workshop for teachers in the summer, going from there to the University of Georgia to take work in Education.

Jeannette (Chichester) Adams is in Macon with her family until she goes to Japan to join her husband.

You girls of the class of 1948 are sadly missed at Wesleyan this year, and we are looking forward to seeing many of you on Thanksgiving! You are invited to come by the Alumnae Office after the soccer games and before the Banquet for a chat and a bite to eat, and to rehearse your song for the banquet if you wish.

During the late summer we sent out cards to everybody asking for news and for the present address of each member of the class, and the following information was gleaned from the replies. If you did not return yours, shame on you! If you did not receive yours, something must be wrong with our information about your address, so please call our attention to it.

I have been enjoying the visit in my house of Giovanni Corsini, '51. We spent two weeks visiting all over Paris. We talked so much of our most enjoyable days in Macon—it was indeed a real pleasure both to speak English together and to make vivid again so many wonderful memories. Giovanni is now back in Florence after a pleasant trip through France and Switzerland. I am so glad every time that I get news from the girls . . . it is my wish to have many girls and Alumnae visit me in Paris—they would be much welcomed in my home at any time of the year. It would be grand seeing some Wesleyan friends here! It is quite often that I am thinking of Wesleyan and all my classmates, always with eternal gratitude for the great experience Wesleyan has given me."

The marriage of Sue Marie Thompson of Columbus to William Bradley Turner at St. Paul Methodist Church on October 8 was one of the most beautiful ever held in Columbus. Among the ten bridesmaids was Betty Turner, A.B. '47, sister of the groom, who is the son of Wesleyan's trustee, D. Abbott Turner, and the brother of another Wesleyan graduate, Sarah Louise (Turner) Butler, '41.

REPORT ON RECORD ALBUMS BY JOSEPH MAERZ:

As the magazine goes to press, Mr. Maerz reports the final checking of proofs of the Chopin Albums which he made in the summer under the auspices of The Wesleyan Alumnae. Nearly two hundred orders have already been received, and we are accepting others now. There seems now no doubt that the finished albums will be in hand well before Christmas.

Please fill in and return this blank:

Please order for me.....(number) of the Maerz albums.

I enclose $10.00 in.....(check, money order, cash).

Important Announcement!

Just in time to get the news in the magazine comes the official announcement that Wesleyan has placed on the approved list of the Association of American Universities.

The list of approved institutions is also used by other organizations such as the American Association of University Women.

Announcement of the good news was made by Dr. Silas Johnson on November 10 in chapel, reasons for the approval being excellent scores of Wesleyan girls on the graduate record examinations, additions to the library and other physical facilities, increase in faculty salaries and additions of more qualified members to the faculty.
